Receives Baptism
Of Fire in Senate

Senator Fletcher, of Florida, Leads Democratic Forces in Opposition to Harding's Pet Measure.
ADMINISTRATION HIT BY THREE SENATORS

Senator Harrison Denies Any Intention on Part of Democratic Minority to Engage in Filibuster.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, December 11.—The administration shipping bill was taken up today by the senate and was subjected immediately to a baptism of fire by democratic opponents.

Chairman Jones of the commerce committee, which reported the bill Saturday after making several changes in the house draft, called up the measure. His opening statement in behalf of the legislation, however, went over until tomorrow, because of the time consumed by the democrats in several attacks on the measure and by the reading of the bill and both majority and minority reports in compliance with a demand by Senator Fletcher of Florida, ranking democratic member of the commerce committee.

The democrats started their attack as soon as Chairman Jones made his first move in the legislative struggle which is expected to occupy the senate for weeks. Senator Jones proposed first that the senate proceed to immediate consideration of the ship bill but objection from the democratic side blocked this move until after the regular calendar had been disposed of. The commerce committee next suggested that the senate, beginning tomorrow, meet an hour earlier, but withdrew the proposal in the face of objections that this would interfere with committee activities.

Democrats Spring Surprise.
Republican supporters of the bill rather expected an attempt by the democrats to prevent the taking up of the bill, but the motion was carried without a dissent on a viva voce vote. The next move by Senator Jones—a proposal that the senate on quelling work today recess instead of adjourn, in order to expedite consideration of the bill—was used by three democratic senators as a vehicle of attack on the administration policy with respect to the measure and on the legislation itself. The proposal later was ruled out of order on a point raised by Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, led the attack with a criticism of the administration's course in postponing house action until after the elections on what he described as "concededly unpopular legislation" and then in bringing pressure to bear to hasten enactment of the legislation "before the members of congress have had a chance to reflect on the expression of the people at the polls in November."

Supporters Met Defeat.
The ship bill, Senator Robinson said, entered into the fall campaign in more than 50 congressional districts and in every case, he asserted, the candidate supporting the legislation went down to defeat.

Senator Harrison in arguing his point of order, denied that he or any other democratic senator proposed to filibuster against the bill. He criticized the action of the administration in calling the special session at which the house passed the shipping bill and at which he said the senate had done "just four things."

"One was a very extraordinary proposition," he continued, "and one which the American people welcomed, namely, the swearing in of a woman for the first time in the history of the American congress as a senator from the state of Georgia."

Another was equally welcomed by the American people and was more welcomed by senators on the other side of the aisle (the republican side) and that was the resignation of Mr. Newberry.

Two Other Propositions.
The other two propositions that came before the congress were what-

Government Loses, However, in Important Case Concerning Taxation Coming From California.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, December 11.—Two cases considered by the government of major importance in the enforcement of national prohibition were decided by the supreme court today. In one of them coming from the state of Washington, the government scored a sweeping victory, the supreme court holding that both the federal and a state government can prosecute and punish the same unlawful act in the manufacture, possession, transportation or sale of intoxicating liquors.

The other case, coming from California, the government lost in its contention that in the enforcement of national prohibition an executive officer can impose and collect as taxes the assessments and penalties imposed by those sections of the revised statutes which remain unrevoked by the Volstead act and which became law while the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor was not prohibited.

Indictments Dismissed.
The United States district court for western Washington dismissed a federal indictment charging Vito Lanza, Dick Bart and others with manufacturing, transporting and possessing intoxicating liquors, on the ground that they had been tried and convicted in the state courts for the same offense. In reversing this action today the supreme court held that "in the absence of special provision by congress, conviction and punishment in a state court under a state law for making, transporting and selling intoxicating liquors is not a bar to a prosecution in a court of the United States under the federal law for the same acts."

T. H. Verdell and Scott Jackson Each Suspended on Other's Charges.

Accusing each other of illegally disposing of whisky confiscated in a recent raid, T. H. Verdell, group head in charge of the Athens office of the state prohibition department, and Scott Jackson, agent attached to that office, were suspended Saturday from the service by Director Fred D. Dismuke, it became known at the local federal building Monday.

It is alleged that Verdell had existed between the group-head and his assistant for some time, resulting in Jackson accusing Verdell of giving away to friends certain whisky which was seized in a raid and of the latter accusing the former of similar conduct. The two men were summoned here last week and are said to have admitted they had violated the law. They were immediately suspended, it was said.

It was rumored at the Federal building Monday that when the two agents learned that each had incriminated the other, a flimsy encounter between them was threatened and except for the intervention of friends while the two men were being questioned here, they might have exercised physical violence upon one another. Details of the actual offenses which the two agents claim were committed by the other were lacking Monday as Director Dismuke was reported absent from the city on a business trip to south Georgia. It is understood that the cases were placed in the hands of Georgia E. Golding, special agent for the United States intelligence department, and that he obtained statements from each of the two agents, which they ultimately admitted were true.

Mr. Golding refused to state whether he would recommend that charges be preferred against the prohibition agents, nor would he discuss the details that led to the suspension of Verdell and Jackson.

Davis Urges That the Conciliation Machinery of the Federal Government Be Greatly Expanded.

CHANGES ARE URGED IN IMMIGRATION LAWS

Present Facilities for Regulating Immigration Are Declared Inadequate By Labor Secretary.

Washington, December 11.—Declaring the nation "must find a way to avert these futile, fatal appeals to force in industry," Secretary Davis of the labor department, recommended to congress today in his annual report that the conciliation machinery of the federal government be so expanded as to enable it to handle effectively nationwide industrial disputes.

"No better example of the futility of these appeals to force can be found," said the secretary, "than the recent strike of the bituminous coal miners. After months of suspended industry the 600,000 striking coal miners returned to their work without a single change having been effected in wages or conditions of employment. It has been the experience of the department of labor that disinterested intelligent practical conciliation is capable of ending many of these disputes."

"It seems to me that before enacting any radical legislation or changing the administrative scheme for dealing with these strikes we might well consider the perfecting and extension of the machinery which has proved so effective in the past."

Immigration Changes.
The secretary's report recommended also a series of legislative enactments on other subjects dealt with by his department. He asked that the immigration laws be revised to permit examination and selection of prospective immigrants at their ports of departure and to make more stringent the provisions of the Chinese exclusion act; that aliens resident in the United States be enrolled and educated in Americanism; that definite action be taken through a constitutional amendment or otherwise to end the employment of children as wage earners; that juvenile offenders be given a status in the federal courts separate from that occupied by adults, and that the federal employment service be enlarged to enable it to keep a finger at all times upon the industrial pulse of the nation.

Mr. Davis reviewed in detail the part taken by the federal government

SIMS TO DEMAND
COMMITTEE POWER

New Mayor Declares for Election of Department Chiefs of Council Committees.

Police factions in city council next Monday will not clash over Mayor Key's veto of the ordinance empowering the police, health and park committees to nominate the department heads, but will divide emphatically over a measure giving these committees full power to elect, it appeared Monday.

Mayor-elect Walter A. Sims threw a fresh bomb into police ranks with the announcement that he stands foursquare for committee election, and the only reason he supported the Watkins proposal for committee nomination, giving council authority to elect, was because it was a step in the right direction.

"The people voted to supplant the boards with committees and they expected the committees to have the same powers the boards had," declared Mr. Sims.

"The police committee, the sanitary committee, the park committee and the water committee ought to have the same authority and control of their respective departments that the police board, the health board, the park board and the water board were empowered to exercise over the departments."

SOFT GLOVE POLICY

Washington Experts Believe That Harding Is Now Planning to Buck Radicals of His Party.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMAN.
Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, December 11.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—There was further talk at the capital today of the much repeated assertion that President Harding is going to war with congress in an effort to establish himself as dominant as well as the titular leader of the republican party.

It is said that the chief executive will discard the soft word for the big stick of the Roosevelt administration, and that he intends congress shall be driven, if needs be, from the course of procrastination and delay with which observers have characterized the past months of republican control.

According to current advice the president may continue to carry his pleasing countenance and velvet glove, but an iron hand will fill the glove and an inflexible purpose will glare from his eye. Cause for the metamorphosis is said to be found in the recent action of progressives of congress, led by Senator La Follette and members of the farm bloc, in drawing up a legislative program somewhat in contravention to administration policies.

Will Fight to Last.
Mr. Harding is determined to fight to the last, realizing that members of the radical group are out for his Father of Groom 'Told Me Something That Opened My Eyes,' She Says.

BY PARKS RUSK.

It was a letter from Dr. J. D. Lanier, of Macon, which opened the eyes of Mrs. Peggy Lewis Lanier and precipitated what has now developed into a seeming unbridgeable break between Sidney Lanier, III, and his girl bride.

"In that letter his father told me something that caused me to decide that there was nothing for me to do but decline to assume the role of wife," the repudiated wife said Monday afternoon.

Seated in the office of her attorney, Mrs. Lanier talked at length of the hurry-up wedding in Atlanta on Sunday night, November 5. At times she showed a great deal of reluctance to continue with her narrative, but quite clearly the girl bride is extremely resentful of efforts she believes are being made to put her in an improper light as to the marriage and as to the manner in which the incident and its sequel have been made public property.

Comes to Own Defense.
"I have not wanted any publicity about any of it at any time, and I had nothing at all to say, as you yourself know, until I was told of the reports that had been given out at Macon. That, of course, hurt my feelings and my pride, to think that things were being said down there which are not true and have never been true."

FOUR-POWER PACT
PLAN OF HARDING
SPLITTING G. O. P.

Two Groups of Republican Senators Place Entirely Different Construction on Proposition.

POSITION IRRITATING TO 'IRRECONCILABLES'

Second Group Believes President Intended European Powers Should Form Own Pact.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMAN.
Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, December 11.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Split discussion in senatorial circles at the capital has resulted from President Harding's reference to the Pacific four-power pact being made a model for like assurances throughout the world. Following the statement, which was a part of his message to congress recently, two groups of senators have placed different interpretations on it.

One group, representing the Born-Hiram Johnson-La Follette contingent and those identified with the old "irreconcilables" of the Wilson administration, take it that the president's viewpoint is changing toward actual participation by the United States in such European problems as the Turkish situation—a move that raises their ire. Only a few days ago several republican senators were sounded out on the advisability of the four-power pact which would apply to transatlantic problems in the same way the Pacific four-power pact, negotiated at the Washington arms parity, applies to controversial spots in the Pacific.

Object to Idea.
The information obtained from the "feelers" was to the effect that not only the old irreconcilables but those of the Lodge stamp as well objected to the idea, according to the best advice. This is said to be responsible for Mr. Harding's failure to advocate an out and out proposal of the kind in his message.

At the same time, however, the president is said to have had the idea so impressed upon him and to have come around to that way of thinking so strong until he could not refrain from incorporating at least a germ of the idea in his message, although the sentence mentioning the subject was rather cryptic.

Taking an entirely different position, the second group of senators assert that the president never had any such idea, adding that the conversations preceding the preparations for the message necessarily ranged Jury Returns Verdict in Favor of Governor of Mississippi in Less Than One Hour's Time.

Oxford, Miss., December 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—A verdict for the defendant was returned by a jury in United States district court here early tonight in the trial of the suit of Miss Frances Cleveland Birkhead, stenographer, against Lee M. Russell, governor of Mississippi, for damages based on charges of seduction and other serious allegations.

The verdict—the climax of one of the most sensational lawsuits ever filed in a Mississippi court—was returned at 6:08 o'clock, just 28 minutes after the arguments were concluded, instructions "given and the case submitted."

Neither of the principals was in the courtroom when the jury presented its verdict. Governor Russell, with Mrs. Russell, went to the home of his brother immediately after the jury retired. Members of his counsel also had left the courtroom. Miss Birkhead and her attorneys left at the same time for their hotel. And the crowd which for a week had packed the courtroom to its capacity had passed from the building, evidently in the belief that no immediate verdict was in prospect. Of the several newspapermen, court attaches and a handful of the more determined of those who had followed the trial during its week of sensational developments not more than a score of men remained when the jury filed in with its verdict.

It contained only the required seven words: "We, the jury, find for the defendant."

Only Few Hours Remain for Atlanta Music Lovers to Insure Metropolitan Season Here in April.

IMMEDIATE ACTION IS URGED BY BIDWELL

Peculiar Conditions This Year Force Early Signing of $120,000 Contract. Small Amounts Solicited.

Atlanta's last call for 1923 opera is made today.

With probably the most brilliant season in its history promised, Atlanta must deliver the good by noon.

The "goods" in this case consist of a guarantee fund of $120,000—the same amount raised last year. It must be guaranteed by noon Tuesday so that the Atlanta Music Festival association can close its contracts with the Metropolitan Opera company of New York and so that the company in turn can close its contracts with Mme. Teriza, Mme. Galli-Curci and other stars for their appearance during the Atlanta engagement.

Signing up as one of the guarantors of Atlanta's $120,000 opera fund is one of the easiest ways and probably one of the cheapest ways of performing real service for the city. At the same time it is one of the valuable and vital services a citizen can render this city between the time this paper is read in Atlanta and noon Tuesday.

REMAINS SILENT ON REPARATIONS

Bonar Law Expected to Make Position Plain at Meeting of the House of Commons on Thursday.

REPARATIONS POLICY
CAUSE OF DIFFERENCE

France and England Still Unable to Agree—Lloyd George Chuckling Over Embarrassment of Administration.

London, December 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—Premier Bonar Law, who has remained a sphinx throughout the three days' conversation between the allied ministers while the others gave out the news and views regarding the proceedings, is not expected to unseal his lips until he appears in the house of commons Thursday to speak on foreign policy in general but British official circles do not express optimistic views regarding the breakdown of the conference.

After Mr. Bonar Law's speech Thursday, the floor will be taken by Lloyd George, who tonight is said to be chuckling at the thought that the tranquility of the new conservative government had been unable to bring the French into line on a rational reparations settlement.

Policy of Force.
Throughout the premier's conference, the policy of force has clashed with that of foresight on the reparations issue, according to the British, with the result that the year 1922 will end with almost as great an allied discord as did 1921. It is pointed out that the French attitude has considerably altered since the summer; even the French no longer hope to exact 6,000,000,000 pounds sterling as set by the first reparations plan, but there still is a wide difference regarding the methods of obtaining a third of that sum, which it is now considered possible to obtain.

There is said to be hope of further concessions by France before the continuation of the conversations at Paris; otherwise there appears to be no certainty that the British and French can accommodate their differences.

SENATE CONFIRMS
COAL COMMISSION

Men Named by President Harding Are Given Official Rank After Delay of Several Weeks.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, December 11.—Nominees of members of the United States coal commission, the fact-finding body authorized by congress and appointed recently by President Harding, were confirmed today by the senate, giving the commission official status after some weeks' delay.

The members of the commission are John Hays Hammond, of Washington, chairman; former Vice President Marshall, Judge Samuel Alschuler, of Chicago; Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta, Ga., Constitution; George Otis Smith, director of the United States Geological Survey; Dr. Edward T. Devine, of New York city, and Charles P. Neill, former commissioner of labor.

Complete Motorization of Sanitary and Police Departments Among His Recommendations.

"MULES OUT OF DATE,"
NEW MAYOR THINKS

Refers to $187,500 Inherited Debt and Promises Economy Coupled With Efficiency.

Besides strong views upon steps necessary to raise police efficiency, a major feature in the message which Walter A. Sims, as mayor of Atlanta, will deliver to the new council January 1, will be a recommendation to that body that the sanitary department be completely motorized.

His message will contain important references to every department of the municipal government, he said Monday, and will carry special recommendations relative to next year's finances and to public improvements, particularly paving.

The new mayor will ask that the present police horse patrol be done away with and the police department motorized in its entirety. "The department could do more with three or four automobiles than the whole horse force does now," he said Monday.

"They can't police their beats and keep their horses tied out here to posts half the time. Policing on horses is out of date. There is no sense in not keeping abreast with the times."

"Hauling garbage with mules is out of date, too. We've got to become progressive enough to be efficient. I shall urge that the sanitary department be motorized.

"The garbage in the business district ought to be handled at night, too, so that the garbage cans, unsightly and in the way, can be kept off the sidewalks during the day time. And this plan would relieve traffic from being impeded and blocked by the big sanitary trucks stopping at every place of business to pick up the garbage."

Mr. Sims' recommendations, if carried out, will do away with 19 horses in the police department, and over 100 mule-drawn sanitary carts will be replaced with motor equipment. There are 133 mule-drawn carts at present, but Chief Jentzen stated Monday that in a few sections of the city where there are unpaved streets, the use of trucks would be almost impossible. The department now operates 25 trucks. Chief Jentzen estimated that 12 more would motorize it. He acceded fully with Mr. Sims' idea to gather the downtown garbage at night.

Wants Best Paved City.
The mayor-elect declared that he hopes to see Atlanta the best paved city in the United States before the end of his administration. He endorsed the plan announced by William A. Hansell, incoming chief of construction, to put sufficient repair squads at work and keep them at work until the holes in existing pavements are patched.

Mr. Sims said he expects to urge economy wherever economy and efficiency can be practiced together. In his message he will call council's attention to the deficit which the new council will inherit from the old

GRAND JURY PROBE OF COFFIN THEFTS

Order Issued to Recover
Missing Books of Suspected Undertaker—Bodies Changed in Graves.

The Fulton county grand jury Tuesday morning is to investigate the alleged wholesale robbery of graves in South View cemetery by S. F. Ware, proprietor of the Atlanta Undertaking company, and Claude Maddox and Thurman Jones, all negroes, whom he is alleged to have employed to disinter the bodies of dead and turn the coffins over to his company for re-sale.

A subpoena duces tecum has been issued, directing Attorney Roy S. Drennan to produce before the grand jury all the records and books of the undertaking company which, according to officers investigating the case, he seized and carried off, blocking their efforts to trace several alleged stolen coffins.

Police Open Graves.

The graves of many dead negroes were opened Monday under the supervision of Lieutenant Jordan, of the county police. Officers Bob Jackson and Marvin Baker, and City Detectives T. O. Sturdivant and Pat Campbell. Several were found to contain dead bodies that had been shifted from the coffins into the pine boxes that originally contained the coffins.

In one instance the officers found that the body of Solomon Jackson, who was buried October 1, 1922, was enclosed in a casket originally sold to relatives of Nancy Joyce and in which she was buried September 9, 1922, according to the officers.

This robbery was uncovered in the confession of Thurman Jones, who claimed that Jones identified the coffin which contained Jackson's body as the one he had dug up and removed from the grave of the Joyce woman. Jones' confession further led to the finding of the bodies of Laura Perry and Anna Battle in pine boxes in the graves without caskets. (The Perry woman was buried December 8, 1922, while the Battle woman's body was buried November 27, 1922.)

To Re-Bury Bodies.

The caskets have been recovered and turned over to David T. Howard, local undertaker, that the bodies might be replaced therein and re-interred. Howard is the undertaker who originally buried these bodies.

According to the confession, the officers state they have from Jones, six graves have been robbed by him and his confederates. Five of the coffins have been located by the officers, and they believe the sixth will be found when the Atlanta Undertaking company's records are surrendered to them.

A large crowd of negroes viewed the disinterment of bodies in the South View cemetery Monday by the officers. Loud sobbing could be heard as the dead bodies were unearthed and found to be enclosed in nothing but pine boxes.

SALVATION ARMY
CHRISTMAS FUND
GETS MANY GIFTS

Contributions ranging from $1 upward have been received through the mails to aid the Salvation Army in providing a real Christmas for hundreds of poor men, women and children of Atlanta who otherwise would have no Christmas.

"Our greatest problem," Lieutenant Colonel Joseph Atkinson, declared Monday, "is in having a sufficient number of people take part in the work. It will take many contributions like the ones we have received if we are to provide food for all and toys for the children so that they will not believe that Santa Claus is only for the rich children." An urgent appeal for Atlantans to aid in the Christmas and winter relief work was also issued by Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway and Power company, who is also president of the Atlanta advisory board of the Army.

Almost 2,000 pounds of chicken alone will be required to provide the Christmas dinners, Adjutant Young said, besides the other food that will go into the 400 baskets the Army will distribute.

NEW POLICE STATION
URGED BY BEAVERS

Establishment of a new police station was urged Monday by both Chief Beavers and Councilman W. C. Jenkins, of the seventh ward. The chief will go before the police commission tonight at its last regular meeting before passing out of existence and recommending a new central police station and three sub-stations. He said Monday that the old station is sadly inadequate and is falling into disrepair.

Councilman Jenkins will seek an appropriation in council for the erection of a police station twice the size of the old present structure and modern in every detail. He said the old station can be sold for almost enough to build a new structure, advantageously located as it is for many business and commercial purposes.

AUTO AND TWO MEN
TAKEN IN RUM RAIDS

An automobile and two prisoners were held by the county police Monday as the result of a rum raid conducted against "rum runners." The officers also seized and confiscated about 150 gallons of whiskey.

The prisoners are J. F. McDaniel and J. S. Thomas, who police say were found in possession of five gallons of whiskey. The automobile was captured at Highland avenue, near Colquitt street, after an exciting chase. Most of the whiskey had been pitched from the machine while being pursued by the officers. The occupants, two white men, abandoned the auto before it was captured.

Among the subjects to be discussed is the applicability of Christian ideals to present-day thought and actions, and the classes on "Old Testament History," "Exalting for Christ and the Church," "Life of St. Paul," "Quiet Talks on Prayer" and "Review of the New Testament" will attend the meeting. "I'd Give--"

Electric Curlers—
If I wanted to give her something that would really last and something that would cause her to remember me gratefully every day throughout the year. And I wouldn't pay $1 for them, either! I'd straight to High's Basement where I saw some regular $4 electric curling irons, complete with cord and plug, marked $2.49.

A Collar Bag—
to a man and he'd be subtly flattered by my little tribute to his fastidious grooming. Some collar bags that'll please him mightily are of leather and will be found with the leather novelties on the Main Floor at $1 to $2.50.

An Eversharp—
because most every man has found that when he needs a pencil most, the point is broken or else miserably dull—and Eversharp's always have a good sharp point ready for use or one immediately available. And I'd find just the Eversharp I wanted priced somewhere between $1 and $2.50.

A Warm Auto Robe—to the man who is the owner of a car and therefore a candidate for one. Plenty of them at High's in dark colors; plain ones on one side and plain on the other. Fringed at ends. $7.50 for domestic make; $14.95 for their bonnie Scotch cousins.

Silk Teddies—
because I know that I could get pretty ones and still not pay over $1.95 for them unless I particularly wanted to. Other gift shoppers have found out the same thing, for I notice there's a merry hum about that table on High's Third Floor all day long.

A Jap Kimono—
to the woman who loves a bit of dignity with her daintiness in her boudoir moments. Such lovely ones of silk almost covered with embroidery. I saw on High's Third Floor—and the most remarkable thing! They were priced only $2.95.

Fancy Bath Towels—
like those lovely ones I saw in Jacquard and fancy scroll designs in High's Linen Sections. If I was a mother, I'd give 'em to my married daughter. If I was a daughter I'd give 'em to my mother or my married sister. They're only 59c each.

TO BUILD HANGARS ON WATKINS FIELD

Air Board Hears That Government Hangars Have Been Shipped for Prospective Air Station.

Government hangars will be erected immediately on Watkins field, the new municipal landing site on Brown Mill road recently acquired by the city, it was announced Monday following a meeting of the Atlanta Air Board at the office of Van H. Burgin, chairman.

Captain Otto G. Trunk, commanding officer of the army-air forces located in the fourth army corps area—headquarters at Fort McPherson, attended the meeting and stated that the hangars for the new landing field had been secured Saturday and would be shipped to Atlanta for immediate erection.

Captain Trunk gave the board a new official map showing the government air lines now in operation and airways proposed by both the post-office department and the war department for early service.

Atlanta was shown as one of the strategic points on the route from Washington to New Orleans, and it was pointed out that this city is destined to become a great center for air travel as it has been for railroad traffic.

Chairman Burgin reported that he had received a letter from Captain Wright, of the government airways division, Washington, which stated there were strong prospects for locating a government air squadron here following the close of the present fiscal year.

New members elected to the board at Monday's meeting are Lieutenant Robert E. Lee Cox, president of the Southern Aero club; Walter F. Sawyer, pilot and ex-army flier; Roy C. Flannigan, Atlanta Journal, former army aviator, and Captain Fraser Hale, instructor in aviation at Georgia Tech.

"UNLOADED" GUN MAY PROVE FATAL TO SAVANNAH BOY

Savannah, Ga., December 11.—(Special.)—Following the death of Carl Stahmer, aged 14, yesterday from accidental discharge of a gun while starting on a hunt, and the injuring of two companions, John Stahmer and Dennis Harvey, another casualty from accidental discharge of a pistol occurred today when 10-year-old Antonio Ruiz was critically injured by an "unloaded" pistol.

The lad was with older companions playing at home with a weapon supposed to be harmless. He is in a hospital and may not recover from a huge hole torn in his chest.

Stahmer and his companions, hunting yesterday in a canoe, were compelled to shove the canoe out of a marsh when the tide went out. As they shoved the boat forward after handing Carl Stahmer the guns, one of the guns was dropped and discharged. The recoil from the gun caused the second gun to go off, both charges striking young Stahmer, killing him instantly. John Stahmer and Harvey suffered minor wounds about the legs.

The list, which contains more than 125 names and represents nearly every state in the union, is as follows for Georgia:

J. S. Montgomery, Albany; Frank Hadaway, Ashburn; J. E. Milton, Atlanta; William J. Walker, Augusta; H. S. Roberts, Brunswick.

Judge Fines Woman; Now Faces Arrest On Contempt Charge

Wichita, Kan., December 11.—Miss Frances W. Grave, secretary of the Wichita League of Women Voters, was fined $200 and sentenced to 60 days in jail for contempt of court today by W. P. Campbell, judge of the city court.

Judge Campbell charged Miss Graves with publishing a resolution "calculated to interfere and obstruct the orderly and independent exercise by the court of free and unbiased judgment."

As Judge Campbell was rendering judgment, Sheriff Simmons, served a writ of attachment on the judge, charging him with contempt of district court, alleging that he disobeyed an order issued Saturday by Judge T. E. Elcock, temporarily restraining him from continuing the contempt proceedings against Miss Graves.

"If you want me, you'll have to take me forcibly," Judge Campbell replied, adding that "I know that puts you in a bad hole, Mr. Sheriff, but stand aside and don't obstruct the proceedings of this court or I'll order you locked up in your own jail."

AGED MAN MEETS DEATH IN EFFORT TO BOARD TRAIN

Cordele, Ga., December 11.—(Special.)—George B. Warren was killed instantly about 5 o'clock this morning by the south bound A. B. & A. passenger train at Mussel White station, about 5 miles south of Cordele. He was trying to flag the train to go to Hatley to visit his daughter. He had spent the night at Penia, a little station on the Seaboard railroad, about a mile and a half from Mussel White station.

At the inquest this afternoon the coroner's jury returned a verdict that the killing was unavoidable and laying no blame on the engineer.

Mr. Warren was 73 years of age, and it is thought that the light from the engine blinded him and that he could not move off of the track in time to keep the train from hitting him.

MAN AND WOMAN SENTENCED TO DEATH

Frederick Bywaters and Mrs. Edith Thompson Found Guilty of Murder.

London, December 11.—One of England's most sensational murder trials has ended with two lovers—Mrs. Edith Thompson and Frederick Bywaters—found guilty of killing the former's husband and sentenced to death.

A gasp went up from the courtroom in Old Bailey Monday when the jury, which had been out only a little over two hours, returned its verdict.

The beautiful young wife, who had confessed repeatedly that she had attempted to "weaken" her husband's constitution by giving him ground glass so he could not resist heart attacks, almost fainted. She toppled into the arms of a matron. Bywaters was pale, but composed.

Judge Sheppard asked the customary question, "Have you anything to say before sentence is passed?"

"My God! I'm not guilty!" screamed Mrs. Thompson. Then she collapsed.

Bywaters calmly answered: "I say that the verdict of the jury is wrong. Edith Thompson is not guilty. I am not an assassin."

With this several women fainted. The judge donned his fatal black cap and sentenced the pair to be hanged, making no personal comment. Mrs. Thompson was carried from the dock; her lover walked out steadily.

The verdict of guilty in the case of the unfaithful wife was a surprise to those who had been following the trial. It was anticipated she would be found guilty of murder in a lesser degree than Bywaters, inasmuch as there was no testimony tending to show that she had stabbed her husband after the ground glass had failed to produce death.

The two were convicted chiefly on statements contained in passionate love letters exchanged between them. Several of the missives detailed plans of disposing of the victim.

POPE PIUS XI. HOLDS CONSISTORY; NAMES CARDINALS

Rome, December 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—Pope Pius XI held his first secret consistory for the creation of new cardinals today. He also delivered an allocution and pre-announced the appointment of several archbishops and bishops already nominated.

The ceremony occurred in the hall of the consistory in the presence of all the cardinals living in Rome. They were headed by Cardinal Vincenzo Vannutelli. The pontiff delivered an address in Latin, describing and praising those whom he intended to raise to the purple, and ending with the traditional formula wherein the consent of the sacred college for the appointment of new members of its body is requested. The eight cardinals created today were:

Monsignor Achille Locatelli, nuncio in Lisbon; Mgr. Giovanni Bonzano, apostolic delegate in Washington; Mgr. Henriquez Rey y Casanova, archbishop of Toledo; Mgr. Alexis Charot, archbishop of Rennes; Mgr. Eugenio Tosi, archbishop of Milan; Mgr. Arthur Touchet, archbishop of Orleans; Mgr. Giuseppe Mori, secretary of the congregation of the council of Jesuits, and the Rev. Father Franz Ehrle, formerly the vatican librarian.

NO DECISION REACHED IN ATLANTA GAS CASE

Supreme Court of the United States Adjourns for Current Session.

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, December 11.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Adjournment for the current session today, the supreme court failed to announce a decision in the Atlanta gas rate case, arguments on which were held recently.

Officials of the court stated that no decision in the controversy would be handed down now before the opening of the court again in January.

The principal question in dispute involves the action of the Georgia railroad commission in declaring rates which the Georgia Railway and Power company and the Atlanta Gas company might charge to consumers of gas, the two latter companies charging that the rates are confiscatory.

CONGRESS PLANS TO HELP FARMERS

Farm Credit Legislation Receives Impetus Which Both Parties Assent Means Success This Year.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, December 11.—Farm credit legislation received in congress today an impetus which both republican and democratic leaders said insured legislation in behalf of agriculturists during the present session.

Arrangements were made for immediate hearings by two senate committees and tonight the unofficial senate farm bloc met and made plans to press the credit extension legislation.

Bipartisan support for major features of administration recommendations to expand credit of farmers was indicated. Bloc endorsement, meaning that of democrats as well as republican members, for important features of the Lenroot-Anderson bill, which had the approval of administration officials was said to be promised. Democratic members of the bloc said that President Harding and the administration had "come around" and given their support to the credit legislation previously urged by the bipartisan agricultural group.

The senate banking and agricultural committees will proceed tomorrow with "double-header" hearings on farm credit affairs. The banking committee is to begin hearings on the Lenroot-Anderson and other credit bills and the agricultural committee today heard Senator-elect Frazier, republican, North Dakota, who told of the need of farmers for credit and other aid, and for several days western delegations representing agricultural interests are to give testimony.

Among the bills to be taken up by the senate banking committee possibly for incorporation of an omnibus credit measure, is that of Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, to limit the profits of joint stock land banks to 6 per cent. The committee also has before it other bills to repeal tax exemption privileges of such banks, whose continuance has been questioned by Secretary Mellon as of doubtful value.

Airmen Searching Mexico for Trace Of Missing Fliers

Three United States Machines Seeking Col. Marshall and Lieut. Webber.

Nogales, Ariz., December 11.—Four United States airplanes, under command of Captain R. G. Ervin, penetrated Mexico to a depth of 80 miles today in an extension of the search for Colonel Francis C. Marshall and Lieutenant C. L. Webber. The four planes crossed the border not far from Nogales, Captain Ervin stated on his return, flew due south to Magdalena, then turned west for a distance of 60 miles and returning, re-entered the United States near Ruby, west of Nogales, late this afternoon.

No trace of the missing aviators were found, though the searchers flew low to investigate two suspicious firing areas and, flying in spread formation, "gridironed" a wide area. No attempt was made to land in Mexico.

"JOY CHRISTIANS" ARE DENIED WINE AND JOY FLEES

Rochester, N. Y., December 11.—The Joy Christians, a new religious sect formed here with a pledge to follow the example of the Lord as a "drinker of wine of His day," suffered a reversal when a federal prohibition agent from headquarters in Buffalo advised their "pastor," A. Stanley Copeland, to postpone his second "communion."

The federal agent took from Copeland a bottle of beer intended for the service to have it analyzed and also a copy of the sermon which the organizer of the new sect intended to deliver. Copeland called off the services after the federal officer told him the law requires that he prove he is the responsible head of a responsible religious organization before he would be allowed to distribute wine.

Copeland last Friday evening held a "communion" at which a quart of wine was dispensed to the "worshippers" in two old-fashioned beer mugs. The "pastor" has been having difficulty in getting an adequate supply of liquid refreshments for his "congregation" and last Friday morning he called at police headquarters to request the authorities to give him some seized liquor for his new cult.

LEVEE PROJECTS TO HELP NATION

Witnesses Tell House Committee of Need of Passage of Mississippi Flood Control Measure.

Washington, December 11.—Completion of the Mississippi river levee project would benefit the entire nation as well as the section immediately affected, witnesses today told the house ways and means committee at the opening sessions of its hearing on the Mississippi river flood control bill. The witnesses declared that by including the river in a continuous system of levees from the delta to Kansas City, and the Illinois river navigation would be increased, agriculture, commerce and industry would be benefited; millions of dollars' worth of crops and property annually flooded would be saved, and loss of life would be stopped.

Representative Newton, republican, Missouri, predicted that freight carried by the government barge line on the river would more than be doubled if the stream were cleared of sand bars and other obstructions, while James B. Smith, of St. Louis, treasurer of the Mississippi River Valley association, declared traffic would be increased five-fold by completion of the projects on which federal and local governments already have expended millions of dollars.

Representative Newton, republican, Missouri, predicted that freight carried by the government barge line on the river would more than be doubled if the stream were cleared of sand bars and other obstructions, while James B. Smith, of St. Louis, treasurer of the Mississippi River Valley association, declared traffic would be increased five-fold by completion of the projects on which federal and local governments already have expended millions of dollars.

Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, declared he did not regard such appropriations as a subsidy and expressed the opinion that the senate commerce committee would approve the measure.

ATTACK ON GIRL CAUSES LYNCHING BY MOB IN TEXAS

Streetman, Texas, December 11.—The mob which this afternoon shot and killed George Gay, negro, had dispersed tonight and no further trouble is anticipated. Gay was arrested this morning in connection with an alleged attack on a young woman here. Another negro who was arrested with Gay and who was said by Gay to have been implicated with him in the alleged attack, was set free.

The only negro hotel here was destroyed by fire tonight. The origin of the blaze is unknown. Whether there is any connection between the lynching and the fire, officers have been unable to determine.

U.S. EXPORTS SHOW MONTH'S INCREASE

Well-Distributed Over All Countries—Great Britain Is Largest Consumer in October.

Washington, December 11.—Increased exports during October, well distributed among most of the countries of the world, are shown in figures made public today by the department of commerce.

Great Britain again was the heaviest purchaser of American products, taking exports valued at $83,028,654 as compared with $70,822,110 for the preceding month.

In October a year ago Great Britain bought $84,951,115 in American products.

The increases were attributed by department officials largely to the annual seasonal shipments of cotton except in the case of South and Central American countries.

Canadian purchases of American products totaled $38,459,056 in October as compared with $55,362,852 in September.

The countries of Europe took American products of a combined value of $206,108,784, while the September purchases by those countries amounted to $164,595,188.

Export totals for October, as compared with September, included:

France $30,215,952 against $22,024,784.

To all of the Central American countries combined the United States shipped in October $3,783,621 in merchandise as against $3,837,777 in September while to the Philippine islands the American exports in October were $2,947,081 as compared with $3,419,934.

The countries of Europe took American products of a combined value of $206,108,784 while the September purchases by those countries amounted to $164,595,188.

Exports to the countries of South America aggregated in value $20,079,498 as compared with $20,621,407 in September. For Asia the total was $40,579,938 compared to $30,424,501. The grand division of Oceania received $10,620,218, compared with $8,423,636, and Africa $4,300,653, a decrease of approximately $700,000.

Exports to North American countries for the month were valued at $89,124,063, or $8,800,000 more than in the previous month.

Clemenceau Ends Visit to America; Bound for Home

Last Address Made by Tiger to Farm Bureau Convention.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, Lighted News Staff Correspondent.

Chicago, December 11.—Summing up the points made in his previous pleas for American co-operation with France, Georges Clemenceau made his farewell American address as "from one farmer to another" at the convention of the American farm bureau Monday, and is now speeding back toward France.

"I leave the matter to the American people," the Tiger said. "I am going home."

"I simply had one mission prompted by my own conscience, and that was enough to bring me here."

Although realizing that his American tour has failed to arouse any spontaneous outburst of support on the part of the American people or the American government, the French premier will sail from New York Wednesday for Paris hoping that his mission will yet bear good fruit.

"I want you to let French people know that America never disintegrated herself in the execution of the Versailles treaty," he said, in again explaining what he felt the United States should do.

"That is all I ask."

Besides stressing the bond of international brotherhood, Clemenceau told the farmers:

First: That the way for America to collect her debt was to influence Germany to pay her debt to France.

Second: That France wants American wheat, but hasn't the money to buy. Here again, he said, the solution lies in payment of reparations to France by the Germans.

One thousand officials of county farm bureaus assembled here from all parts of the country and representing an aggregate membership of 1,500,000 farmers, listened to the Tiger, who had traveled a second time from the Atlantic seaboard just to lay his case before the nation's food producers.

The delegates were reserved in their applause, however, when the Tiger told them that the carrying out of the Versailles treaty must come before America returned to prosperity. The applause seemed to be held for such moments as when the Tiger told them that he was just a "dirt farmer" like themselves.

"TEN CLUB" DISCUSSES HOLDEN'S WAR BOOK

"War Memories," by Lieutenant Frank A. Holden, of Athens, representative-elect, was pronounced the "book of the month" by the members of the Ten club at the regular monthly dinner at the Piedmont Driving club Monday night. Judge Marcus W. Beck was host on the occasion, and opened the discussion of the book.

Mel R. Wilkinson, in discussing the book, declared that it was the best work on the great war that he had ever read, and the consensus of opinion among those present was that the book was truly ahead of anything that had come out during the month. A feature of the dinner Monday was a paper by Walter W. Cooper on "Rabbi Ben Ezra," the first of a series on Browning's works. Judge O. H. P. Bloodworth, of the supreme court, and Ivan E. Allen were special guests of the occasion.

"After two conferences," said the secretary in reciting the details of settlement negotiations, "the president submitted a definite plan of settlement. The president then called in the late T. DeWitt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, who, I understand, agreed to urge acceptance of the proposition submitted. It appears, however, that when the plan was presented to the Association of Railway Executives in New York, it was rejected."

Continuing his discussion of strikes which involved the interest of the general public on a large scale, Secretary Davis said that "all thinkers have recognized for some years that men who take an oath of office in public service gave up their right to strike."

"However, there is a field in the twilight zone between public employment and private industry, generally referred to as public utility or quasi-public service," the secretary continued. "It is in this classification that the railroads, the coal mines and other similar industries fall. The president has well said that every man has a right to work as well as the right not to work in any given industry. The right not to work in industry or under conditions which the individual considers improper cannot be abridged. There must be a compensating circumstance whenever a limitation is set upon this freedom of action."

In connection with his proposal for enrollment of aliens, Secretary Davis said:

"To put across such a program there must be a method—a systematic and automatic means of bringing the alien in contact with the government in a friendly spirit of co-operation. The alien should be acquainted with the solicitude of the government as to his individual welfare; the government must know the alien."

"I should strongly oppose any enrollment if it were to be conducted as a system of espionage. It is, however, true that such an enrollment for educational direction would automatically bring to the notice of the government those who actively resisted organized government or are disposed to treat lightly institutions of law and order."

Along with his recommendation for a selective immigration law, enabling American inspectors to examine mentally and physically all immigrants before they sail for the United States, Mr. Davis asked for extensive enlargement in the immigration machinery in this country. In many ways, the secretary said, the present facilities for regulating immigration are inadequate. The Ellis Island station at New York, he said, usually has at least 50 per cent more business than it is equipped to handle, while the station at Boston is "woefully inadequate" and that at Seattle is awfully located and should be replaced by a government-owned building. The station on Angel Island in San Francisco, he pronounced "wholly unsuited for the purpose for which it was built," recommending "that proper steps be taken for the erection of a suitable immigrant station in the city of San Francisco, with a view of abandoning the station at Angel Island."

Says Act Has Failed.—The Chinese exclusion act, the labor secretary said, had "signally failed" to accomplish the purpose sought. Some of the provisions of the statute, he said, were unnecessarily harsh in their relation to exempted classes of immigrants, while those aimed at Chinese laborers were circumvented with comparative ease.

"It seems to me," he continued, "that the present situation with reference to Oriental labor under our law is simply disgraceful. The pressure for entry into this country is tremendous and apparently well financed. The schemes for circumventing the law are most astute and clever and in numbers are beyond belief. The subject is worthy of the most careful consideration and a most thorough and comprehensive revision of the law by congress."

Discussing the child labor situation, Secretary Davis said a complete survay would indicate that 1,500,000 children are "victims of premature toil in mines, mills, factories, fields and homes."

"There are those," he said, "who advocate uniform child labor laws by the states. On the other hand, there are those who advocate the adoption of an amendment to the federal constitution giving congress exclusive power to deal with the subject. Repeal of which method may be adopted, it is urgent that some method be adopted which will forever blot from the escutcheon of the nation the black spot of child labor, which still exists in some form in some places."

Federal Employment.—In connection with the proposal for strengthening the federal employment service, the secretary said:

"Here we have two problems to meet—to prevent a recurrence of the employment depression which threw between five and six million men into our workmen who are daily without means of livelihood."

"We have a powerful agency in meeting both these problems in the United States employment service, which, fully organized and equipped, would have its finger at all times on the pulse of the labor demand and supply of the country. The past year this service listed about 2,500,000 workers seeking employment and placed nearly 1,500,000 of them in jobs without expense to the worker or employer."

"Industrial strife and unemployment offer opportunities to the enemies of government too favorable to overlook them."

TO CLOSE THE GAP.

Dispatches from Washington indicate the probability that a constitutional amendment requiring the congress, which is elected in November, to assemble immediately following the Christmas holiday season will be authorized during the present session of congress.

Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, is the author of a resolution to that effect, which is now pending in the senate, and for the adoption of which there undoubtedly is a preponderant demand on the part of the American public.

The interregnum between the dissolution of one congress and the installation of the one elected by the people to succeed it is one of the gravest fundamental weaknesses of our present governmental system.

It makes possible the enactment of laws by legislators whose policies and principles have been repudiated by the people, exclusively from whom the right to legislate for a democracy is supposed to emanate.

At the present time, for instance, laws of major and vital importance to the people are in process of enactment by a congress the commissions of a large number of whose members were canceled by the voters of the country in the election of last November.

Despite the fact that the records of those defeated members of house or senate were condemned in democratic fashion by overwhelming majorities of their respective constituencies more than a month ago, the repudiated law-makers are still in service, clothed with constitutional authority to continue to make laws for the people until next March.

Our government should be more responsive—the machinery more quick to respond to the will of the people—and Senator Caraway's resolution points the way to make it so.

The president has announced approval of the proposed amendment, his position being that following an election time should be allowed for "the cooling of passions and resentment."

At the same time, the president expressly approved the records and principles of most of the present members of congress whose reelection he desired, but who were repudiated at the ballot box last November because of their attitude toward important governmental questions and issues.

It is not likely, therefore, that his opposition will be of sufficient weight to prevent the closing of the gap between the incumbencies of outgoing and incoming congresses by authorization of the present congress, a majority of whose members may be expected—in the light of the wishes of the people in this matter—to be more anxious to accede to the wishes of the people in this matter than to those of the president.

This congress may, of course, fail to refuse to authorize submission of the necessary amendment to do away with the undemocratic hiatus at which the pending resolution is aimed; but if it does, or if the president succeeds in blocking the proposal, the chances are that the reform will be consummated within the next few years, because the will of the people in this country is still the supreme power behind the government.

CHURCH AND EDUCATION.

National Education Week, which closed last Saturday and the activities of which were conducted by authorization of the federal bureau of education, very fittingly coincided with the special efforts that were made during the same period—December 3-9—by the educational forces of the North and South Georgia Methodist conferences, when delinquent subscribers to the Methodist Centenary Christian education movement were especially urged to "pay up" their over-due subscriptions to this fund.

It has been pointed out by leaders in this movement that Dr. J. J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education, is a graduate of a leading Southern Methodist institution of learning and is a member of that denomination.

Also, that Dr. M. M. Parks, our own state superintendent of schools, who has been particularly active in behalf of the National Education Week enterprise, is a graduate of Emory university, the foremost Methodist educational institution in the south, and is a member of the South Methodist church.

But of most importance and greatest significance in this connection is the fact that annually there are between 4,000 and 5,000 young men and young women of Georgia who are offered collegiate training in the Methodist schools of this state alone, to say nothing of what is being done by the Methodist denomination to promote the cause of Christian education in other states.

This is only illustrative and typical of what the churches are doing for the youth of our nation, for it embraces the educational work of only one denomination.

By the side of the Methodist denomination stand the other churches of the country, all striving to enhance to the utmost possible extent the educational and cultural, as well as the spiritual, welfare of American boys and girls.

This is an invaluable service to all noble interests; and any patriotic observer must be stirred with admiration to see hundreds of thousands of American citizens laying down in unselfish gifts millions of dollars to be applied to the praiseworthy purpose of uplifting and developing the character of the youth of our country, and thus of raising the standard of American citizenship.

FARMS AND RAILROADS.

The extent to which the prosperity of the farmers of this country depends upon the prosperity of the railroads is illustrated by the following statements contained in an editorial that appeared recently in The Chicago News:

"Here are two stubborn facts that farmers and spokesmen of farmers might well reflect upon:

"1. In Kansas 400 grain elevators are closed because the railroads lack cars to move grain.

"2. According to Julius H. Barnes, a grain expert, about 4,000,000 bushels of grain in American markets today are worth $400,000,000 less than a proper relation to foreign prices would warrant solely because the railroads are not in position to move and deliver grain as needed."

Additional evidence going to show how the lack of adequate transportation facilities is not only injuring the farmers, but business, and the general public, which depends, upon the products of the farms for its physical sustenance, is furnished by Governor Samuel R. McKelvie, of Nebraska, in a recent statement to the press regarding rural conditions in his state.

After portraying the visible indications of returning prosperity in Nebraska, which, like Georgia, is strictly an agricultural state, Governor McKelvie said:

"On the other hand there is a shortage of cars. This is hampering the marketing of grain, live stock and perishable products, and is doing particular injury to the potato-growers, who, in addition, have been hard hit by very low prices. But for the car shortage, there would be a heavy movement of wheat and corn now and this, in turn, would increase bank deposits—a thing that, in some quarters, is badly needed."

President McKelvie, of the Illinois Central railroad, told the farmers of Iowa the other day that "the farmer's biggest stake in the railroads is in having a transportation system able to give him adequate service at all times," and he pointed out to them, as The Chicago News expressed it, "that the present shortage of transportation facilities, with its attendant losses to farmers, is in part the result of unintelligent agitation and shortsighted legislation inimical to railroads."

There is much truth in this. The continuous agitation of the question of railroad rates and regulation by the government only retards railroad development, and, consequently, retards proportionately the return of prosperity to the whole country.

The alien is welcome if he will remember that the native born have certain seniority rights.

BRONCHITIS AND BUGOLOGY.

The doctor experienced the thrill of his patient's gratitude in Grampy's case. The patient began to feel it along about the tenth or twelfth dose of the autogenous bacteria. The cough had by that time materially diminished in frequency and severity so that the patient had quite comfortable nights for the first time in many winters. The expectation decreased in quantity, and what aroused Grampy's sense of gratitude particularly was the fact that he began to feel more energetic than he had in months, even the months he had been following the hygienic life.

Whether all this, particularly the feeling of greater well-being and renewed strength, could be attributed to the effect of the "vaccine" treatment was of course uncertain, but it was certainly certain that the doctor himself would throw no cold water on Grampy's enthusiasm for the treatment. Too often Grampy had been the wet blanket himself. At the same time the doctor made his private reservation to the effect that possibly the relief of the bronchitis, from which the patient had suffered for many winters, gave Grampy a new interest and enthusiasm in life and this mental state in itself tended to stimulate his energies as a whole.

From this time on the patient actually anticipated his weekly or bi-weekly injections of the bacteria, and became an ardent advocate of "bugology." He button holed his neighbors who happened to have bronchial trouble and told them they needed some "bug" treatment—and they concluded Grampy was getting "buggy" himself.

In all, the doctor administered eighteen hypodermic doses of the "vaccine," each of the later doses containing about double the number of killed Pneumococci and Staphylococci in the preceding dose, and by that time Grampy's sole worry seemed to be that he might not get his "vaccine habit"—he had now begun to experience immediate bracing effects from each dose, and averred, and the doctor let him rave, that the vaccine still in his little glass ampule in Grampy's waistcoat pocket, a charm, talisman or curio, if not exactly a relic, which he carried, he says, to ward off a relapse.

As for Grampy's bronchitis, two winters have passed and he has not forgotten how to cough. You may find him out wallowing a ball around the pasture lot any fine day now, and on many a rainy, drizzly or cold day too, when a lot of young players stay off the links. He says he will walk wide rings around Weston—when he gets old enough. His friends, his friends to forget this catching cold foolishness and get out in the air.

CANDOR.

If a man is open, frank, sincere, honest, wide eyed in candor—well, the rest doesn't matter.

If he is a writer, people like to read his words; if a preacher, folks love to hear him; if a judge, his decisions are accepted as just; if a teacher, he has followers aplenty.

And so it follows every activity of life where a man is played.

The candid salesman, for instance, "delivers the goods." And few questions asked. For a salesman must first sell himself, his own honesty of feeling, his faith, his hours and years of study and belief, before he may face another and ask for something.

Candor is the shortest distance between two difficulties.

And if personified, he is the fellow who opens the door that separates vast disagreement and says: "You people get together!"

Candor is friendship, in love, in business, in personal meditation—it's an life-giving air as water.

When you don't know what else to do, be candid—with yourself and with those about you.

Even the politician can afford to be candid. For who is there who can adequately give question to such a one?

I often wonder why candor is so rare. Probably no man of this generation had this quality of candor to so remarkable an extent as did Theodore Roosevelt. He made candor a strictly love him, trust him—follow him.

That's what it will do for you, if you use it. (Copyright, 1922, The Constitution.)

Mr. Barrett Knous 'Em

(From the Spokane, Wash., Spokesman-Review.)

President C. S. Barrett, of the National Farmers' union, who knows Washington life and the politicians there as well as the next one, gave a sharp insight into the political situation in his interview in The Spokesman-Review: "There are half a dozen men in the senate who would dominate congress if they could get together, but they can't. They would no more follow La Follette than La Follette would follow Hiram Johnson—and there you are."

Barrett also pointed out the slip their opportunity to found a permanent progressive party when they refused to support Roosevelt in 1912. "The trouble was," he said, "that another leader than himself, and Borah thought the progressive water was cold and the swimming more pleasant with the stand-patters."

Mr. Barrett knows these senators and others like them—fellows of overbearing personal vanity and an unbending ego. Their workaday was distinguished to them, and has grown odious with the passing years.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE

(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution)

New York, December 11.—The professional end has reached the end of the trail. Winter is here. Country homes are closed and there is no room for them in the small city apartments. They must exist on scant fare until spring comes again.

Only a city like New York nourishes this strange type of boulevard grifter. There are thousands of them—women without incomes who drift from one country home to another unhappily. Usually they are cultured creatures whose fortunes went on the rocks.

One of the most persistent at one time owned a marble town house on the avenue which had a drawing room suite of furniture belonging to Napoleon Bonaparte and good breeding is hers but she is penniless. She is "cold shouldered" among the elite but welcomed by the nouveau riche.

She like her numerous sisters, is able to give valuable pointers on managing servants and to those who cater in polite circles. They are adept at the art of flattery. In this way they pay for their keep.

There is a lower stratum of professional grifters who do nothing—save perhaps a few penny earnings from booklets. They are brazen in inviting themselves to homes where their barriers would ordinarily bar them.

Caloused to rebuffs, they crash into drawing rooms with cool indifference to lifted eyebrows. After all, ladies are not to be trifled with. They are in season last season a matron called her home in mid-season. She confided that she had fourteen house guests. Only five of them had been invited.

The biggest scandal New York has known in years is raging. It concerns the amours of a dusky belle of a midnight dance resort. The tale is told that an admirer of the mulatto girl was shocked when she refused to purchase a suite of rooms that he offered her the entire building and the young girl is encased in a queenly splendor. She is dripping with diamonds and rides around in a Rolls-Royce. A few years ago she was a housemaid in the home of a Harlem undertaker.

A group of factory girls near Center market have solved the problem of reducing and at the same time saving luncheon money. All of them weighed more than 150 pounds. They stopped near the neighborhood where they lived and went to a pickle store in the neighborhood where they lived and made their meal of that. They are now weighing around 125 pounds.

A feverish search for treasure is being conducted in the bed of the East river. It is being financed by a group of financiers who are in quest of seeking new excitement. In 1780 the British frigate Hussar, carrying $2,500,000 in gold consigned to the royal treasury, was wrecked on a rock opposite the upper end of Randall's island and sunk about a hundred yards from shore. Cafe proprietors are hanging out the treasure which has been retrieved. It would toss a little jazz into the waning life of Flash alley.

The old Union League club on Fifth avenue is now being torn down. The department store from the Herald Square district is to take its place. It was a gloomy old place and the window displays were hideous. It was in the flashing parade that went by.

BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY

(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution)

Text, "God is a very present help in trouble." Psalm 46:1.

In trouble, a very present help in trouble. And how troublesome trouble is! Trouble pursues us, once it has caught our attention, into both our privacy and our social hours.

And, in how many ways we are in trouble from time to time, trouble over-paying our bills, over foolishness, over debts neglected or laws transgressed, and on into the tragedies of heartbreak, home disrupted, good name ruined, the vision splended out.

Present help is right there for us in "trouble," it is "very" present. See that too, child of trouble, as well as your trouble.

"In trouble," there is some one to help you—a present help—you don't have to go for Him or send for Him; He does not need to be called. He is God. "Trouble" is a very present help.

"Trouble" is the night whose stars are the promises of God.

RAYN AND WARMER, THIRD DIVIDEND

TUESDAY FORECAST FOR DEPOSITORS OF WEATHER MAN IN AUGUSTA BANK

Depositors of the Merchants Bank of Augusta, which has been in the hands of the state banking department since its failure about one year ago, will receive a third dividend of 10 per cent in Augusta Tuesday, according to an announcement by E. A. Thompson, assistant superintendent of the state banking department.

Mr. Thompson said this announcement in the absence of Superintendent Bennett, who was called to New York on business last week. Total deposits of the bank amounted to $1,245,000 and the payment of Tuesday will amount to $124,500. This payment will reduce the amount due depositors to $500,000.

SHIP SUBSIDY BILL GETS BAPTISM OF FIRE

ters that were not offered in good faith, that were attempted here in a sham battle, in order to obtain credit votes throughout the bill—the Liberty party, which all senators on the other side knew was dead at the moment it was born, and the Liberatorian loan proposition during consideration of the bill, saw senators on the other side, like the king of France with 40,000 men, march up the hill and then march down again. By votes furnished by the republicans and the Liberatorian loan was sent back to the sleep that knows no waking."

Senator Harrison declared that to accomplish "the four things" the four taxpayers were forced to pay the expense of an extra session and added that now this piece of infamous legislation, which would saddle another $75,000,000 on their backs.

The democratic attack was continued by Senator Stanley, Kentucky, who described the ship bill as "a piece of legislation of a few people and as evidence of what he contended was a general departure from the government's founding principles of equal rights to none and equal rights to all."

The reading of the bill and reports took about four hours and held the attention of four or five senators. When the reading was concluded the senate adjourned until tomorrow when Senator Jones plans to make the first speech in the bill's behalf.

It is finally incorporated in the proposed treaty with Turkey.

This decision is of great interest to the American schools and institutions which have large realty holdings in London.

Russia has not abandoned hope of forcing her position on the Lausanne conference concerning the closing of the straits to a handful of a few people or at least of reducing to a minimum the number of foreign vessels which will be permitted to pass through the straits to the Black sea.

M. T. Chicherin called on Tunc Pasha today with counter-proposals. He informed Ismet that Russia would surely never sign a straits settlement which would give the allied project. The allied project is that the straits shall be open to as many warships of each nation as are possessed by the nation which has the power of the Black sea, which will certainly be Russia.

As a counter measure Tunc Pasha asked the Turkish government to support a plan whereby foreign nations could dispatch through the straits only one-third as many warships as the allied project would permit.

This, he argued, was only fair to Russia, because the entire powers could always amalgamate their forces and thus be as powerful as Russia.

Ismet Pasha told Chicherin that the world wanted the straits opened on a reasonable basis and that Turkey would not combat the whole world. The Near Eastern conference, which made little progress today, is plainly marking time to await the outcome of the London negotiations.

Lord Curzon and M. Barreire, in dealing with Turkey and Russia, have established an Anglo-French entente at Lausanne, which they hoped would be strengthened by a reparations understanding between England and France at London. There is an interlocking of interests between the two great powers in Turkey and Russia.

As a Christmas celebration is decided on, Ismet Pasha may want to consult with the national assembly.

FOREIGNERS GET EQUAL RIGHTS.

Lausanne, December 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—Foreigners and foreign corporations operating in Turkey would be permitted the same rights as the Turks under the Turkish laws, according to a decision reached today by the sub-commission on capitulations of the Near East conference.

Even the Japanese, who refuse to permit foreigners to own land in Japan, would be permitted to acquire real estate in Turkey if today's decision is carried out.

Constitution Editorial

Editor Constitution: You published an editorial last September highly critical, to not further denigrate it, of my action in presenting a resolution to the house of representatives for the removal of Congressman Volstead as chairman of the judiciary committee of the house of representatives because of inappropriateness which would prejudice his legislative conduct.

The resolution was based upon the sworn return of the Anti-Saloon league that it had paid campaign expenses of Congressman Volstead previous to the Anti-Saloon league's appearance before the committee on the removal of Congressman Volstead as chairman of the judiciary committee of the house of representatives because of inappropriateness which would prejudice his legislative conduct.

You took occasion at that time to be very censorious in reference to my attitude in relation to the enforcement of the 14th amendment to the constitution.

In fairness to me that my position in this latter matter may be thoroughly understood, I desire to draw your attention to the following letter which I sent several days ago to the president, Hon. Warren G. Harding:

Committee on Appropriations, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., December 2, 1922.

Hon. Warren G. Harding, The President, The White House, Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. President: It has been stated that in your address to be made at the opening of the fourth session of the 67th congress, it is your intention to refer to the widespread attention to the fact that the 14th amendment to the constitution is being enforced and its enforcement is being enforced.

You will agree that all parts of the constitution should be enforced equally and in no part of the constitution.

SILHOUETTES of CITY LIFE

What O. O. McIntyre would have seen while gazing from an upper story window at Ellis and Peachtree streets Sunday morning—

See that old majestic building looks ghostly. No one is seen around it except workmen who are building stores in front of it. Wonder what the Alfridians expect to do with it. Look at the kidnapers for Sunday school. They come in droves on the street cars and by auto, to say nothing of foot. As Dr. Brady says, walking will do them a lot of good. I used to be a star in Sunday school classes.

And there is the old governor's mansion site. Nothing but bill boards on the Peachtree street side now. Wonder what Ben Massell will be able to do with this end. He is said to be working hard to put a hotel

Beautiful Bride Deserted On Day After Her Wedding

Mrs. Sidney Lanier, ill, formerly Miss Peggy Lewis, beautiful Atlanta girl, whose romance came to a sudden end when her husband returned to his home in Macon the day following their marriage. She has retained former Congressman William Schley Howard to represent her. According to announcement Monday night, her attorneys have not decided what course they will take to protect her interests.

DISCLOSURE SHOCKS LANIER'S BRIDE

know he has done so more than once in the presence of others. I either declined outright or put him off each time. While I was away from Atlanta, in West Virginia, we kept up a regular correspondence, and his affection continued throughout it.

Denies Drunkenness. While describing in detail the marriage and the incidents immediately preceding it, Mrs. Lanier paused in her narrative to emphatically deny the statement accredited to young Lanier that he was drinking on the night of the wedding.

"It hurt me to the quick that Sidney should have made the statement that he had drunk anything together, for we did not."

"The truth is, after he got to the home of Miss Allen, whom I was visiting, he and I went off together and set down to talk. He was just as much in love with me then as he had been on other occasions when he pleaded with me to marry him, and I gave him my word that I would marry him on a date to get married not only untrue, but is absurdly ridiculous and entirely unworthy of the gentleman I believed him to be."

"When we had been talking a little while, and he had told me how much he loved me, he said: 'Come on, let's get married. I smiled and said: "All right, when?" and he said: "Right now." I told him all right again, and then the arrangement was made to get a license and go to a preacher and get married. Sidney called the preacher and really, when he was calling, I didn't pay any attention to who the minister was."

"It is not at all true that we went anywhere after the marriage ceremony, except back to Mary Jane's house. We left there at 10:30 o'clock, and went out to West End to the home of the minister and were married and were back at Mary Jane's by 11:30. We were accompanied by a couple of friends in the automobile. Now that ought to make it plain where we went."

Planned Home in Macon. "Anyway, when we got back home Sidney stayed only a little while and went on back to the city to a hotel. I saw him Monday afternoon and again Monday evening, and when we were together both those times he was planning how we were going to make a home in Macon, and we went into the details of his plans. He wanted me to go on down with him right away, and I declared to him I just couldn't until I could get some things—some clothes."

"I know he stayed here Tuesday and got home Wednesday, for on Thursday I received a long letter from him, written at the Lanier hotel in Macon, dated at noon, in which he said he had just gotten home. In that he wanted me to get ready as quickly as I could and go to Macon. Then Thursday he called me on the telephone and said he wanted to be sure that I was going to hurry up and get ready to go to Macon, and just as soon as I could he would come back and get me."

"He said he would give me three days and I told him I wanted at least two weeks to get ready. You see I needed that much time. "Well, that Thursday, then Saturday I got a letter from his father. I declare I just hate to go over this part of it again, it hurt and shocked me so much. Anyhow, in that letter his father made references to something which actually frightened the life almost out of me. I had never dreamed of being confronted with such a problem in all my life, not ever. Oh, it was awful to think about it, and I am still frightened when I think of how I felt when I read that letter."

"Well, I just wrote to Mr. Lanier, frankly, and told him under those circumstances, which Dr. Lanier in his letter had so surprised and shocked me with, that the marriage was a sad mistake. Acting under this mental pressure I did say in my letter to Mr. Lanier that I ought to get out of it as quickly as I could or as quickly as possible, or something like that. "Oh, all these details are so horrible to me, and it makes me so sick to think and think and think about it all the time; it would make anybody cry, don't you think?"

"Then when they began circulating for from an awful feeling of shock and nervousness."

Bride Is Nervous. Mrs. Lanier's recital of the broken romance, which has attracted wide attention owing to the prominence of the principals, was given in the presence of Attorney James H. Dodgen, in the Gould building. She appeared to be under a great nervous strain throughout the statement.

Attorney Dodgen said that until he has conferred with Attorney Schley Howard, who was engaged by Mrs. Lanier Sunday, he will not decide on what procedure to take in behalf of the young woman. Mr. Dodgen was retained as additional counsel owing to the illness of Mr. Howard.

DR. LANIER DENIES ALIENATION CHARGE.

Macon, Ga., December 11.—(Special.)—In answer to a report from Atlanta to the effect that William Schley Howard, former congressman and now attorney for Mrs. Sidney Lanier, is about to enter suit against him for alienating the affections of Sidney Lanier, following the romantic wedding on November 5 of Miss Peggy Lewis, to young Mr. Lanier, the bridegroom's father, Dr. J. D. Lanier, tonight issued a statement denying that he had ever persuaded his son not to live with his bride. "I'll give him the money tonight if he wants to go to Atlanta to get her," he declared. "I tried to get him to live with her, but I told him I would not receive her into our home and support her."

Continuing, Dr. Lanier declared, "I Schley Howard brings suit against me for alienation of affection, I will not even dignify the case by retaining a lawyer. I feel competent to go into the court room to defend myself with the truth, and the people of Macon decide which is the better lawyer."

"This statement that Sidney was drunk came from Schley Howard himself, about ten days ago and told him she had consulted Howard to get annulment. She said his fee would be $200 and she wanted him to send $125 cash."

"The first intimation we had of the drunkenness was when she said that Schley Howard said annulment would come on the ground of drunkenness alone. Howard put that statement in Sidney's mouth. She quoted Howard as saying if it hadn't been for the bottle of whiskey, and those drinks, you two would never have gotten into this trouble."

Says Bought Whisky. "I am not sure," Mrs. Sidney Lanier ever accused the young lady of drinking. Sidney bought a pint of whiskey in Columbus, he told me, and took several drinks there. Immediately, he went up to his room and he took a couple more drinks and at the girl's request, he went to get married, he took another drink."

"The young lady did take about a thimble full, but that wasn't a drink. Sidney didn't have any idea of getting married when he left Macon. I gave him the money to go to Columbus and he went with several other boys. They all threw their things into a satchel. He carried along one spare shirt and that was lost when the satchel was stolen in Columbus. He bet on the football game and won some money. That gave him enough to go to Atlanta. He went up there, got married and borrowed $5 from his cousin to come back home."

GRAND OPERA FUND BY NOON TUESDAY

tors will not have to pay out one cent of real money next spring. With a program of such varied importance promised and with so many of the stars of the highest rank coming to Atlanta under the tentative arrangements, it is almost certain that attendance records will be broken no matter what kind of weather prevails. "It is going to take the closest cooperation of all our citizens to bring grand opera to Atlanta next spring," C. B. Bidwell, treasurer of the association, said Monday. "We have not yet undertaken to see how much money has been promised. The mails are filled with letters for the association and the association officials presume that when these are opened the sum will be raised. But it is necessary not only for the old signers but for new signers to send in their cards immediately. This is certainly the last call."

Peculiar Conditions. Mr. Bidwell declared that the association is in no sense taking the attitude of a beggar, but is insisting under the peculiar conditions that exist that the guarantee fund be raised by noon so that all contracts can be closed.

"This is Atlanta's opera and we want the people of Atlanta to repeat what they have done heretofore in bringing the opera season here. We would not feel at all doubtful about the guarantee fund if we had several weeks to raise it, but because of the necessity of closing the contracts the fund must be raised quickly and we are hopeful that the people will respond to this call," Mr. Bidwell said.

Through the presentation of a season of opera in the spring Atlanta has maintained a pre-eminence in musical circles in the south which has reflected much credit on the city and also has been profitable in many substantial ways. The plans to go ahead with the opera have been virtually completed and with the guarantee fund raised by Tuesday a meeting of officials will be called to make final plans.

Want Little Subscriptions. Mr. Bidwell and other officials of the association are anxious that a large number of $200 subscription be sent in at once to Col. W. L. Peel, Peters building, Atlanta. It may depend upon a large number of these smaller subscriptions to complete the total of $120,000.

"There are hundreds of people in Atlanta who have enjoyed the opera seasons heretofore but who have not felt they were needed in the guarantee list. We want all of these, particularly those who have not signed previous guarantees, to send in subscription cards at once," he said.

Cards were sent to all the signers of the list last year but some of the people who signed last year have moved to other cities, so that it will be necessary to obtain many new signers to take their places. For this reason the association is desirous of obtaining as many new names as possible.

Today at noon, is the last hour. All people who intend to subscribe to the guarantee fund must do so before noon or their act will be of no benefit to the association and their failure may mean that there will be no grand opera season next year.

Officials of the association are strong in their confidence that the season next year will be one of the most successful ever held here provided the proper guarantees are raised Tuesday.

New Stars in Popular Operas.

According to the tentative program Atlanta will have an opportunity of hearing for the first time Marie Jarritz, the Viennese sensation:

Barbara Kemp, a gifted soprano, who has swept the musical circles of Europe, and Sig. Lauri-Volpi, a young tenor who has proved to be the musical sensation of Italy and South America.

In addition to these new singers, Mme. Annetta Galli-Curci will come again next year in her favorite opera, "Lucia di Lammermoor," and also a long list of the old stars, including Scotti, Bori, DeLuca, Danise, Gigli, Harold, Burke, Martinelli and half score of others.

The tentative program, which will be made a certainty if the guarantee fund is raised by noon today, is as follows:

"Tosca," with Mrs. Marie Jarritz, Signor Lauri-Volpi and Scotti.

"Aida," with Barbara Kemp, Martinelli and Scotti.

"Romeo et Juliette," with Bori, Gigli and DeLuca.

"Lucia di Lammermoor," with Mme. Galli-Curci, Lauri-Volpi and Scotti.

"L'Africaine," with Barbara Kemp and Danise.

"William Tell," with Martinelli, Danise and a noted soprano to be selected later.

"Thais," with Mrs. Marie Jarritz, Harold and Burke.

FIVE-WAY LEADERS TO GET MORE HELP

Total of $52,974 Reported Monday—New Forces to Enter Campaign During Rest of Week.

Heroic measures were being taken Monday night by the leaders in the five-way service campaign to rally new forces to the support of the organizations now seeking to establish the budget requirements of the Associated Charities, the Anti-Tuberculosis association, the Boy Scouts, the Travelers' Aid and the Young Women's Christian association.

The industrial organization met last evening in the chamber of commerce assembly hall. This organization began its work last Monday afternoon and was not able to make its first report Monday night. The first report will be made this evening. George H. Phillips is the chairman of the meeting. Sam H. Tilley spoke to the industrial workers.

Total is Now $52,974.
The general organization added $9,736 to the total Monday noon. The campaign total now is $52,974.

That meeting was featured by a report of $1,700 by the executive committee. Accompanying his report A. J. Orme, the chairman, declared that the executive committee had been in session on Sunday afternoon and all of Monday morning on its task and was determined to go out and enlist the leaders of the community in the movement. This statement considerably cheered up the general organization and there was a widespread belief that Tuesday would bring out a greater daily total than has yet appeared in the campaign.

Kendall Weisger, president of the five-way fund and a member of the executive committee, said that the shock troops were coming to the rescue of the organization in the personnel of the executive committee. The situation facing the major local charities is such that heroic measures will have to be taken or they will have to close their doors beginning the first of the new year. The generous response of the Atlanta ministers in making short pulpits speeches Sunday. A number of leading ministers have pledged to the executive committee for the remainder of the campaign.

Many Held Goat.
The goat, which is the campaign symbol for the leading team in the general organization, finally landed in Mrs. E. C. Kuntz's division, where he started his career last Wednesday evening. He was won by Mrs. W. A. Albright from Hank Powell, who held him for three days.

Others to hold the goat during the lively report meeting were H. G. Biglin, Palmer Blackburn and Roy LeCraw. LeCraw, who is the campaign today, relinquishing his job to William Temple. T. C. Dunham has taken the place of DeWald A. Cohen in A. L. Myers' division. Other leaders in the general organization are Harry H. Johnson, J. E. Mellett and Mrs. H. C. Bickmore. Mrs. Bickmore has led Mrs. B. M. Boykin's division for two days.

DOUBLE PENALTY LEGAL, SAYS COURT

ment, the court stated in an opinion by Chief Justice Taft, was to establish prohibition in every part of the United States and affecting transactions which are essentially local or intra-state, as well as those pertaining to interstate or foreign commerce. The power to take executive measures to make the policy effective existed in congress, the court continued, "in respect of the territorial limits of the United States and at the same time the like power of the several states within their territorial limits shall not cease to exist."

The declaration that the states should have "concurrent power" was defined by the court as intended to "negative any possible inference that in vesting the national government with the power of countrywide prohibition, state power would be excluded." "Under the 18th amendment a state was left free, the court held, "to enact prohibition laws applying to all transactions within her limits. States could not, however, authorize acts, the court added, which were proposed by the amendment, but all prior state laws not inconsistent with the amendment remained in full force.

Referring to the contention by the defendants that they could not be placed in double jeopardy, the court explained that the meaning of the double jeopardy as used in the fifth amendment to the constitution referred "to a second prosecution under the authority of the federal government after a first trial for the same offense under the same authority." An act denounced as a crime by both national and state sovereignties, the court said, "is an offense against the peace and dignity of both and may be punished by each." If such a construction did not apply, the court stated, it would be easy to imagine a rush of offenders to state courts to plead guilty, if so, they could obtain immunity from federal prosecution for the same act.

Permit Cancelled.
The Regal Drug corporation of San Francisco obtained a permit to withdraw from bonded warehouses intoxicating liquor and wine for sale under the prohibition act for non-beverage purposes. The permit was canceled, and the collector of internal revenue imposed on the company, in addition to those provided in the prohibition enforcement act, certain taxes and penalties carried by unrepented sections of the revised statutes governing the manufacture and sale of distilled spirits and wines prior to national prohibition.

The supreme court, in an opinion by Justice Kenna, explained that the court had held in the case of Lipke v. Ledire, collector, decided last June, that a collector of internal revenue could not punish by fine and penalty for an alleged criminal offense without hearing, information, indictment or trial by jury.

The function of a tax, the court said, "is to provide for the support of the government, the function of a penalty clearly involves the idea of punishment for infringement of the law."

Emory Students Open Shop.
A. B. Jones, of Atlanta, and W. C. Wilson, of Asheville, N. C., both theological students at Emory university, are opening a "Christmas shop" at 27 West Mitchell street. The profits of the venture will be used to help pay their expenses in school this year.

PLANNING BOARD REFUSES TO LET R. R. OTIS QUIT

R. R. Otis, member of the city planning commission, tendered his resignation at a meeting Monday afternoon but the commission refused to accept it. The members told Mr. Otis that they could not afford to lose him.

The commission took the following action on proposed zoning amendments: Adverse to change from apartment to business classifications for the north side of East Thirteenth street, near Piedmont avenue, favorable to change from business to apartment, south of the Southern railroad right of way at Broomwood, both sides of Peachtree street; adverse to change from apartment to business the northeast corner of Ponce de Leon avenue and Myrtle street; adverse to change from business to apartment, Tenth street, from the present business district to Juniper; favorable to change from residence to business, the northwest corner of Hemphill avenue and Ethel street.

TAKE W. & A. CASE TO U. S. COURTS

Attorney-General Napier
Claims Tennessee Courts
Cannot Condemn Georgia's
Railroad Property.

Attorney-General George M. Napier appeared before the United States supreme court at Washington, D. C., Monday and filed a motion in that court asking permission to bring an original proceeding for an injunction restraining the city of Chattanooga, Tenn., from condemning the right of way of the Western & Atlantic railroad in that city.

The proceedings were brought by the attorney-general after the city of Chattanooga, through its city attorney, had brought proceedings in Tennessee courts to condemn a part of the right-of-way of the railroad, which is owned by the state of Georgia, to be used for opening a new street.

In Chattanooga it is planned to extend Broad street through the W. & A. terminals and it is the contention of the attorney-general that such an extension would cause great loss to the state of Georgia.

It is contended in the bill of the attorney-general that the Tennessee state courts have no jurisdiction over the case which involves a suit between the state of Georgia and the city of Chattanooga.

Attorney-General Napier, in his suit which was directed by Governor Thomas W. Hardwick, seeks to have the supreme court of the United States assume original jurisdiction in the case and to issue a temporary restraining order preventing the city from extending Broad street pending the outcome of the litigation.

TUBERCULOSIS CASES FOUND IN ATLANTA

A number of people suffering from tuberculosis who are attempting to reach far southern points are known to be in Atlanta without sufficient funds to reach their destination, states Miss Mary Dickinson, acting executive secretary of the Anti-Tuberculosis association, and their presence is a menace to the public health.

"Any of these," says Miss Dickinson, "who appeals for help should be directed to the office of the association, 23 East Cain street, and we will appreciate it if the people of the city will send them to us so that arrangements may be made for them to reach their destinations."

Miss Dickinson also issued an appeal for support of the association in its Christmas seal sale, declaring that the work of the body would be considerably curtailed unless the seal sale is successful.

See Piedmont Region as Leader of U. S. Industry

Water Power of State and
Section of Vast Value,
Says Pratt.

That the greatest manufacturing and industrial section of the United States will eventually be in the Piedmont region on the eastern slope of the Blue Ridge mountains, partly in Virginia, North Carolina and Alabama, but mostly in the state of Georgia itself, was the prediction made Monday by N. P. Pratt, one of the south's foremost engineers and one of the leading engineers of America.

Mr. Pratt is also chairman of the executive committee of the board of trustees of the Georgia School of Technology, and formerly acting president of the institution.

"Just as the old south was the greatest agricultural section of America in its day, so will the new south," said Mr. Pratt, "become the country's foremost industrial and manufacturing center. The amount of time required for this gigantic dream to materialize depends on the progress of the technical and engineering education in the south to fit men for the task of harnessing the vast water power of the Blue Ridge to the wheels of southern industry."

"Georgia Tech and similar institutions of learning are the greatest hope of the new industrial south, and upon their expansion depends development of southern industry to realize the possibilities with which nature has endowed this region."

Reasons for Prediction.

Three reasons were given by Mr. Pratt for his prediction. First, he declared that the white population of the south was the purest of Anglo-Saxon stock and that the fact made for unity of effort and purpose. Second, he pointed out that the south, in the streams of its Blue Ridge mountains, has the largest undeveloped water power in America, and that, third, the Piedmont section was at the very door of cotton fields, thus reducing transportation costs in textile manufacturing.

"In New England," declared Mr. Pratt, "orders for industrial plants have to be posted in seven different languages, and only 21 per cent of the population comes from native-born ancestors on both sides. In the south over 98 per cent of the white population comes from native-born ancestry on both sides, and this fact lessens labor difficulties in the south and makes for a unified industrial life, thus giving us a decided advantage over our competitors in the north."

"Furthermore, water power in the Blue Ridge, vast and undeveloped, will lessen our manufacturing costs. Georgia has the greatest water power of all the southern states, and that will give this state the greatest part of the manufacturing."

Cotton Center.

"Another point in our favor is that we are in the very middle of the cotton fields, thus reducing transportation costs and giving us the advantage in textile manufacturing. All grades of cotton goods can be manufactured here under modern textile methods, and already do we manufacture 62 per cent of all the cotton manufactured in the United States, and the remaining 38 per cent of the cotton industry is coming to the south in geometric progression."

"These figures speak well of the recent progress of the south in textile manufacturing, for in 1880 we only manufactured about 12 per cent of the cotton goods made in the United States."

Mr. Pratt is an engineer of national reputation, a graduate of Washington and Lee university and discoverer of the famous Pratt process in the manufacture of sulphuric acid. In connection with this process, he has designed and erected about forty of the largest chemical and mining plants in America.

SOLDIER-WITNESS CURSES IN COURT AND DRAWS FINE

"The dignity of the police court must and will be preserved," announced Councilman Fred C. Woodall, acting recorder, Monday afternoon, as he imposed a fine of $25 and costs on Private G. L. Jenkins, stationed at Port McPherson, when Jenkins resented with an oath certain testimony a negro man was giving.

The case being tried was that of Joseph Jordan, negro, who, it was charged, was caught Saturday night with a market basket containing two gallons of corn whiskey by Officer J. W. Smith. Jenkins was called by the officer to help make the arrest and was summoned as a witness.

In giving his version of the arrest, the negro stated that Jenkins was "hanging on a fence on Piedmont avenue, talking with a negro woman," which the soldier resented with an oath. He was "called down" by Councilman Woodall, who stated witnesses were entitled to protection in a courtroom, regardless of what they testified.

The negro was given a straight sentence of 30 days in the stockade.

GIFT OF TOBACCO GETS ITS GIVER IN TOILS OF LAW

A single plug of dark brown chewing tobacco proved the undoing Monday of Robert Young, 30-year-old negro porter at the Terminal station, who was arrested by United States Deputy Marshal R. D. Daire on charges of breaking open a parcel post package and taking therefrom a plug of tobacco.

Young was arraigned before United States Commissioner W. Colquitt Carter and bound over to the district court in bond of $100, which he furnished. According to Deputy Marshal Daire, the parcel containing the tobacco was smashed while being hauled at the Terminal station and part of the contents taken.

A negro who is employed at the station is another capacity told the officers that Young had given him a long plug of tobacco, which is said to have been identified as the same brand as that stolen from the parcel post package.

Within the last few months a number of packages consigned to the mails have disappeared, presumably after they had reached the station. A thorough investigation by postoffice inspectors is in progress and other arrests are expected, according to the investigating officers.

Junior Chamber Voting.

Members of the junior chamber of commerce are urged to return their ballots in the nomination of twelve candidates in the election of six directors by the night of December 13, the time nominating ballots close. Robert L. Troy, secretary, declared Monday that it was desired to have every member's vote in by December 13.

W. B. Parr, of 311 Highland avenue, Monday reported to the police that his 15-year-old son, Lewis, had been choked into unconsciousness Saturday evening by a burglar, who looted the home, taking about $12 in money.

At the time young Parr was attacked he was in the bathroom, it is stated. He did not see his assailant, and does not know whether it was a white man or a negro. He was attacked from behind. The youth apparently had fully recovered Monday morning and attended school as usual.

Action Against "Night Riders" Up to Sheriffs

Governor Has No Authority,
He Tells Barrow Grand Jury Head.

Civil authorities at Winder, Ga., and the sheriff of Barrow county and his deputies, are required to protect life and property and to preserve law and order in that section, Governor Thomas W. Hardwick announced Monday after he had received letters from R. L. Woodruff, prominent Winder merchant, complaining that he had been threatened by masked night riders.

Mr. Woodruff said the demonstration was made against him at night and that he was threatened because he was foreman of a grand jury which recently called upon members of the Ku Klux Klan to cease night riding activities in that section. In two long letters to the governor, Mr. Woodruff said the grand jury of which he was foreman recently indicted about 20 men for night riding. He charged that later the Ku Klux Klan held a masked parade at night and stopped before his house and exhibited a symbol which is said to be a warning that the Klan is about to strike. The same sign was made in front of the home of Duke Ross, another prominent merchant, who was also a member of the recent grand jury.

In his letter Mr. Woodruff said he had served notice that the first man who stops in front of his home again wearing a mask will be shot dead. He said he was preparing to call a mass meeting of citizens at 10 o'clock Friday morning to adopt resolutions condemning night riding and to take a stand for law and order. Governor Hardwick said Monday that he has no authority to send troops to any county unless the sheriff of that county, the mayor or the superior court judge certify to him that the local civil authorities can not protect life and property and maintain order.

"The Ku Klux Klan does not countenance lawlessness or disorder of any kind, and if Governor Hardwick or any other constituted authority asks the aid of the Klan in suppressing disorders, it would be cheerfully granted. In this particular case, if the Klan can be of an assistance, we stand ready to help," it was stated Monday night by Fred Savage, official of the organization, in reference to the Barrow county affair.

Freida Hempel To Be Heard In Concert

Monday evening, December 18, at the Auditorium-Armory bids fair to be a gala society event, when Freida Hempel gives her popular Jenny Lind concert, given in the fashion of the Jenny Lind of long ago, and members of the debutantes, Junior League, the Woman's club and other organizations attend in the picturesque old-fashioned costume of other days.

The unique idea was suggested by Mrs. DeLoe Hill, president of the Atlanta Music club, which is fostering the special, the second on the civic concert series, and the club is urging that all who can do so, assist in carrying out the spirit of the occasion in this way. Many have already indicated their interest and desire to wear the quaint old-style dress, and it is anticipated the Auditorium will present a gay and brilliant scene, such as Atlantans have seldom witnessed before.

But the star attraction will be Hempel, beloved in Atlanta, whose appearance here is ever the signal for a full house; and it is said she has, perhaps, never been in better voice, nor received greater ovations every-

Walker Family to Gather At Annual Yuletide Feast

One of the very delightful Christmas events which will be of interest throughout Georgia will be the family dinner in Monroe at which Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Walker will gather their children at midday. Included in the group will be Governor-elect and Mrs. Clifford Walker and their two young sons, who will come to Atlanta shortly after the new year. For many years Mr. and Mrs. Walker have given this family dinner, after which the afternoon is spent in happy companionship before a big open-fire in their spacious home in Monroe.

In the evening the governor-elect and Mrs. Walker will give a buffet supper followed by a huge Christmas tree on which will be presents for every guest. During the day the many relatives in Monroe will call at both homes, and this year, of course, there will be many friends who will join the groups in both homes. These are

The play is called "A Syndicated Santa Claus," and the cast includes fifty of the members of the Junior Memorial association, of which Miss Dorothy Moses is president. Miss Willie Williams is directing the play. The leading part will be taken by Harry Ellerbe, president of the "Tech" marionettes, and Miss Louise Calhoun will play the "leading lady." The two business managers for the play are Miss Marie Ellerbe and Miss Helen Miles.

The Junior Memorial association is one of the most important of the organizations of which Atlanta young people are members. It is a branch of the older organization, the Ladies' Memorial association.

Noted Artists Return Home.
Miss Maud Morgan, the famous harpist, and Madame d'Arbly, the lyric soprano, who have been so much feted during their visit to Atlanta, returned Monday to New York. A graceful compliment was the farewell concert which they gave to Mrs. Walter Bedard and Mrs. John Henry Dobbs in Washington seminary auditorium just before they left on the noon train for New York. The concert was a complete surprise to the two ladies in whose home it was given. It was attended by the student body of Washington seminary and a large audience besides.

Atlanta Woman's Club Endorses Judge Bryan's Divorce Views

The bi-monthly meeting of the Atlanta Woman's club was held Monday afternoon in the Auditorium. Mrs. H. M. Boykin, the president of the club, presided and there was a brilliant audience in the Auditorium. The 42 Girl Scouts, a part of the Woman's club, were present and made a striking picture as they advanced on the stage bearing their colors and in the scout uniform. Mrs. Boykin, in a graceful speech presented each one of the club members with a badge of honor for hours of home service given their mothers. Three young scouts received merit badges for work in music, art and in gardening. Those who received the blue badge of honor for 50 hours of service, for 100 hours and one young scout was honored for 200 hours.

Divorce Laws.
Mrs. Victor Krieglshaber, in a splendid speech, introduced a resolution endorsing the views of Judge Shepard Bryan, of the Fulton county superior court, who advocated radical changes in the Georgia divorce laws to check the flood of verdicts granted in undefended cases and urged that the Atlanta Woman's club use every available measure towards passage of the necessary measures. Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, the vice president of the club, endorsed the resolution in a ringing speech of approval. The resolution was passed.

Mrs. Thornwell Jacobs gave an invitation to all to have two-thirds of the Atlanta Woman's organizations to attend reception of the Churches Home for Girls, which will open the home Tuesday, December 19. This home is now a part of the activities of the Atlanta Woman's club.

Mrs. T. T. Stevens, the president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's clubs made a plea for gifts to be sent to 110 soldiers in the United States hospital in Greenville, S. C.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup
Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.
Thousands of housewives have found that they can have two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time. It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—soothes and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract known the world over for its healing effect on membranes. Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Atlanta Woman's club will furnish a large number of these boxes and there was a quick and generous response to Mrs. Stevens' touching plea.

Mrs. Newton Wing announced the luncheon of the home economics department, which is to be given for the husbands of the members of the department of which she is chairman at the Woman's club building Wednesday, December 13. Mrs. Wing stated that the object of the luncheon was to have a home-to-home talk with husbands and to discuss the agreeable topic of "how to adapt a husband to the home." Among the distinguished clubwomen of other cities who will attend this luncheon will be Mrs. Oscar Peoples, of Cartersville; Mrs. M. E. Judd, of Dalton; and R. H. Hankinson, of McDonough, the two latter being members of the Atlanta Woman's club and of the home economics department. Mrs. Harry Todd of the Christiana tree to be given for 200 deficient children in the public schools.

A feature of the afternoon was the playing of June Roscoe, of Anderson, S. C., who was introduced by Mrs. Wilmer Moore. Mrs. Moore paid a tribute to Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin, formerly of Atlanta and now at the head of Anderson college, who sent this little musical prodigy that her Atlanta friends might hear her really remarkable gift. This little girl, who is only 13 years old, played two selections from Mozart with rare skill and great feeling, evidencing a remarkable talent.

Three songs by H. R. Bates was also a pleasing musical part of the program.

Uncle Remus Memorial.
After the business meeting was over the officers of the Uncle Remus memorial association took their places on the platform and the rest of the afternoon was devoted to a memorial of that famous writer whose birthday was December 9. In the absence of Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, the president of the association, who is ill, Mrs. E. L. Connolly, the first vice president, presided with dignity and grace and gave in a short speech a little sketch of the beginning and scope of the Uncle Remus association. Mrs. Fred Stewart followed the speaker, telling of the spread of the birthday holiday of this southern writer now observed in many states. Mrs. T. T. Stevens introduced the speaker of the afternoon, the Rev. John A. Porter, the pastor of the Baptist church, who paid an eloquent tribute to the universality, the simplicity and insight which characterized the writings of the characteristic of Joel Chandler Harris. Members of the Harris family were present in one of the boxes adjoining the stage and received from the club a beautiful slender vase filled with snow-white chrysanthemums, this floral gift being an annual tribute to Mrs. Harris from the Woman's club.

Miss Katharine Erwin Returns From Travel In Europe

Miss Katharine Erwin landed on Monday in New York, after having spent the past seven months in Europe, where she visited friends, was entertained at a series of affairs, and visited many points of interest. She left Atlanta early in April, and landed at Liverpool, going direct to Blundell's, England, to visit Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sumner, and Miss Mary Carrick, who will be pleasantly remembered in Atlanta as having spent last winter here as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Troup Howard.

Miss Erwin went to Paris in May where she was a guest of the family of Andre Ullman, who was stationed at Camp Gordon during the world war and was also on General Foch's staff. Major de Riviere and Madame de Riviere, who occupied the home of Mrs. Oscar Poppenheimer on Ponce de Leon avenue, during their residence in Atlanta, were among those who continued in compliment to Miss Erwin, while she was in Paris.

Major de Riviere was at the head of the southern department of the French mission, who was entertained at an official dinner at the Georgian terrace and who also was lost at a dinner at the Denid Hills club in honor of the French officers stationed in Atlanta, and a group of their friends.

While in Rome she was the guest of her great-grandmother and her aunt, Princess di San Sautina, who reside at the Barberina palace, which has been divided into three apartments, the Italian ambassador occupying one of these.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Manchoules entertained Miss Erwin at their home in Milan. Mr. Manchoules was a member of the Blue Devils, and was also stationed at Camp Gordon during the world war and made many friends during his residence in Atlanta.

Thomas C. Erwin went abroad in late July and joined his daughter and they visited Scotland and Wales together. Miss Erwin and her friend, Miss Mary Carrick, spent a month in Switzerland, and she afterward spent several weeks in Paris and in London, where she was again visiting friends.

Miss Erwin is in New York, where she is visiting her great-aunts, Miss Campbell and Mrs. W. T. Taber. She made her debut three years ago and was one of the most attractive members of the circle.

Will not every club president in the fifth district communicate with me or Mrs. Carter Cook and get one or more names of our ex-service men who are ill or need cheer and help in this community service work? ## Atlanta Women Write For Harper's Magazine

Miss Mary Brent Whiteside, whose poem, "Who Has Known Heights," appears in the December issue of Harper's Magazine, sharing honors with Miss Ida Nelson, whose story, "The Mating of Oby Shorts," is also one of the leading articles of this number.

BY BESSIE SHAW STAFFORD.

The writings of two Atlanta women, Miss Mary Brent Whiteside and Miss Ida E. Nelson, appear in the Christmas number of Harper's magazine, that high-class periodical.

The poem, "Who Has Known Heights," is by Miss Whiteside, who is a regular contributor to Harper's, while Miss Nelson's story, "The Mating of Oby Shorts," is the first she has ever submitted and has been accepted.

"My poems appear in the Christmas number of Harper's magazine, the People's Home Journal, Holland's and Harper's magazines," said Miss Whiteside, when interviewed, "and there is a greater demand than I can supply, because the requirements of each magazine is so widely different, and time and study are both necessary to compose them. Poetry is most inspirational, but it takes a background of hard work to make the inspiration possible. To prove that this is the case, I have spent days over one sonnet, while a poem of sixty lines can be written in half an hour. I have been successful in that my poems command the highest price, but poetry cannot be measured in dollars, for the compensation lies in the artistic and spiritual valuation to those who do creative work. This is my life work and not a recreation."

"The verse which reached the largest audience of anything I have ever written," continued Miss Whiteside, "was called 'The Pavlova Dance,' and appeared in the Weekly Review, since merged into The Independent. It was chosen by the Pavlova management for use on the ice skating programs which were used all over America during the tour of this artist last year. It is an unusual fact that this bit of verse was published the very week after it was written. Last year I devoted my time to writing a poetic drama, which is semi-Biblical, and called 'Strange Gods.' Many of my poems have been written about New York, but being a southerner I prefer to write about the south."

When asked where she did most of her writing, Miss Whiteside replied, "At the Louisiana home of my sister, Mrs. Harvey E. Ellis, where I take long horseback rides and tramps. There is a hotel room in New York, but you see I have no time for writing my poems."

Miss Whiteside is a regular contributor to twenty or more magazines, but she did not begin her writings with poems, for she took a course in short story writing at Columbia university, but soon found out she was not suited to that type, so began specializing in poetry and poetry lectures. She has been invited by many universities to give lectures, but because of the strenuous and taxing conditions dependent upon these lectures she could not accept. She has recently written for the Ladies' Home Journal and Yale Review. In a latter appears one of her best poems, descriptive of southern scenes, while a nature poem "Blue Heron," will be published at a later date. Miss Whiteside writes for nearly all magazines devoted to poetry, especially Contemporary Verse, and The Lyric West.

Her literary poems are reprinted in The Literary Digest and Current Opinion, and she is likewise a contributor to the North American Review. One critic stated that it was most difficult to find thought and spirituality in the modern verse but that her poems proved both. Her poem "Eve" is considered one of the best in years, and twice the usual rate was paid by the magazine accepting same. The head of one of the leading summer schools, Peabody Normal, during the past season read "Who Has Known Heights" to his classes with the comment that it was the best thing of its kind that he had seen since Swinburne. A well-known composer of California, while traveling in Europe recently, set some of her short magazine lyrics to music, and it is expected that these will shortly be issued by a New York music publishing house.

Within the past year Miss Whiteside's work has received gratifying commendations from such poets as W. F. Kirby, Charles Wharton Storer, and Richard Le Gallienne, while a new Virginia poet who uses the pen name of Virginia Statton pronounced her magazine verse a "kind of roses," a most unusual and charming compliment.

Miss Whiteside was awarded the annual prize for the ten best poems published in Contemporary Verse during 1921. The award, however, was not made for 1922. This talented and gifted Atlanta is the daughter of Mrs. Frances Smith Whiteside, a noted educator and one of the pioneer leaders in the suffrage movement.

Miss Nelson is head of the English department at the Girls' High school and one of those rare persons who is truly literary.

"I wrote the story several years ago," she said, "and it has been at home ever since. Finally, one of the members of my family sent it to Harper's Magazine, and to my great surprise it was accepted. It is a piece of work that I did in connection with a short story course at the University of Chicago. It is the first of my writings that has ever been published—and as yet I haven't recovered from the shock. When my family urged me to send the story to a publisher I signed a fictitious name, and when the story was accepted, I did not want to change, but after much persuasion on the part of friends and family I consented to have my own name used."

When she was asked if she intended to try her fortune again, Miss Nelson said, "I would like to write much more than I do, but all my energies and my time I spend at the school and any further attempts with my pen will have to be made in the summer."

Miss Nelson refused to have her picture taken, for, as she says, "I simply can't do that for anybody, and if I am an author, let me be a little cranky about my picture, since all authors are cranky about something, and I ought to be in style."

Miss Nelson is modest concerning her ability, and concerning the honor of having a story in a magazine of such high literary qualities as Harper's.

Miss Nelson has lived in Atlanta ever since the days when she attended the Girls' High school as a student. Her work in the English department is invaluable to the school, for she is not only very brilliant and talented, but has a deep understanding of human nature which enables her to do for the girls a great deal in other ways than instructing them. Her classes range from college preparatory girls in advanced courses in English to business English classes.

She is versatile and accomplishes an almost unbelievable amount of work. It is due to her efforts that the school is now able to put out a magazine. It was she who started the Writers' club some two or three years ago. Her time is filled to the minute of every day, and she is too modest ever to lay claim to anything that she has done for the good of the school.

Perhaps the greatest tribute paid Miss Nelson comes from the heart of one of the graduates of Girls' High school, who regards her as a personal friend and most charming woman, while as teacher she has the reputation with both students and faculty of being the fairest instructor in the school, and as an author, Harper's magazine when it publishes "Who Has Known Heights" to his classes with the comment that it was the best thing of its kind that he had seen since Swinburne.

Miss Ellen Newell Sails For America Friday

Miss Ellen Newell, who is in Europe with a party of ten young girls who are being chaperoned by Miss Ethel McCoy, of Bristol, Va., will sail for home from Cherbourg on the Olympic Friday, reaching Atlanta in time for Christmas holidays. Her last letters arrived today from Spain and one of the most interesting is from Granada, and tells of glimpses of the Alhambra, the court of fountains and many other famous sights. In a letter to her mother, Mrs. Alfred Newell, Miss Newell says "we went first to the gardens of the Alhambra and were so pleased to see that the great cypress tree planted by Fatima, the sultan's favorite of 600 years ago, is dying. We plainly saw the snow covered Sierra Nevada mountains from this enchanting garden. Afterwards in the Alhambra we saw just the colorful, rich style of architecture seen nowhere else in all the world. The open courts and sparkling fountains made it wonderfully beautiful.

"Of course in Granada we saw where Columbus was buried, although according to all of the guides who have conducted us here and there in our travels the poor discoverer must be buried all over Europe. We also saw where he 'laid the egg'—that famous egg.

"In Granada we saw a skeleton of a marvelous palace started by King Charles the Sixth but never finished, although he tore down the sultan's beautiful and fairy like palace to begin it. Here too we viewed the cathedral built by Ferdinand and Isabella, but I was so impressed with the contrast of all of this gorgeousness of detail and wealth of beauty with the poverty and misery on every hand. I never ceased to delight in the little surprise fountains which abounded at every turn and appeared in the most unexpected and delightful places, cooling the air and refreshing the throats of old, as they did us, so travel tired."

Miss Newell will be warmly welcomed after four months' travel in Europe. Though she is not yet a debutante, she bids fair to enjoy the same popularity as that of her mother who was Miss Ellen Hillier.

Perhaps the greatest tribute paid Miss Nelson comes from the heart of one of the graduates of Girls' High school, who regards her as a personal friend and most charming woman, while as teacher she has the reputation with both students and faculty of being the fairest instructor in the school, and as an author, Harper's magazine when it publishes "Who Has Known Heights" to his classes with the comment that it was the best thing of its kind that he had seen since Swinburne.

When my family urged me to send the story to a publisher I signed a fictitious name, and when the story was accepted, I did not want to change, but after much persuasion on the part of friends and family I consented to have my own name used."

When she was asked if she intended to try her fortune again, Miss Nelson said, "I would like to write much more than I do, but all my energies and my time I spend at the school and any further attempts with my pen will have to be made in the summer."

Miss Nelson refused to have her picture taken, for, as she says, "I simply can't do that for anybody, and if I am an author, let me be a little cranky about my picture, since all authors are cranky about something, and I ought to be in style."

Miss Nelson is modest concerning her ability, and concerning the honor of having a story in a magazine of such high literary qualities as Harper's.

Miss Nelson has lived in Atlanta ever since the days when she attended the Girls' High school as a student. Her work in the English department is invaluable to the school, for she is not only very brilliant and talented, but has a deep understanding of human nature which enables her to do for the girls a great deal in other ways than instructing them. Her classes range from college preparatory girls in advanced courses in English to business English classes.

She is versatile and accomplishes an almost unbelievable amount of work. It is due to her efforts that the school is now able to put out a magazine. It was she who started the Writers' club some two or three years ago. Her time is filled to the minute of every day, and she is too modest ever to lay claim to anything that she has done for the good of the school.

Perhaps the greatest tribute paid Miss Nelson comes from the heart of one of the graduates of Girls' High school, who regards her as a personal friend and most charming woman, while as teacher she has the reputation with both students and faculty of being the fairest instructor in the school, and as an author, Harper's magazine when it publishes "Who Has Known Heights" to his classes with the comment that it was the best thing of its kind that he had seen since Swinburne.

Miss Nelson is head of the English department at the Girls' High school and one of those rare persons who is truly literary.

"I wrote the story several years ago," she said, "and it has been at home ever since. Finally, one of the members of my family sent it to Harper's Magazine, and to my great surprise it was accepted. It is a piece of work that I did in connection with a short story course at the University of Chicago. It is the first of my writings that has ever been published—and as yet I haven't recovered from the shock. When my family urged me to send the story to a publisher I signed a fictitious name, and when the story was accepted, I did not want to change, but after much persuasion on the part of friends and family I consented to have my own name used."

CHAPTER XXVI.
A Bad Beginning.
"Well, how soon do we start for the game?" demanded Phillip Harris, sauntering into the room with a cocktail shaker under each arm.
"And how's this for supplies for the day? I've got a marvelous luncheon kit out here in my car, and I thought these might come in handy, but didn't dare leave 'em with the chauffeur."
Cynthia looked at him in amazement. She had always known Phillip Harris as a rather dignified, staid sort of person, and here he was, dashing about as glibly as Ted, she was inclined to frown on the cocktail, in her code, a woman did not drink.
Phillip had called for glasses and was urging that they all sample his wares. She set her hand behind a pile of books on the table by the fire, and went to her room for her hat and coat. When she returned Lucile was ready for the second round of cocktails, and Margaret was saying, "Well, Monica, if I tossed them down as you do I'd be in no condition to go anywhere but home."
"Oh, I can stand a lot," replied Monica casually, holding her glass up to Harris with a smile.
"Yes, evidently," Margaret replied, and her voice had a sharp little edge that boded no good for Monica.
"You're looking perfectly gorgeous, Margie," Cynthia told her, sitting down beside her. "Really, if you only knew."
"My dear, don't I! I don't, nobody does. I've been steamed and pounded and bruised, and I've run miles along a country road, wearing heavy knickers and two sweaters, and punched a bag, and have done every deplorable thing that the mind of man could devise—If I'm not thin and beautiful, it's certainly no fault of mine! Now the trouble will be to returning to the days of my youth today, and if you go in the other car that will spoil everything. Come on.

Lucile was ready for the second round.

And as she waited on the sidewalk for Margaret to tuck herself in, Roger slipped his arm around her and whispered, "Awfully sorry about the floundering, but I didn't forget, and we'll buy some on the way."

She was blissfully happy then, though, a moment later, she became a trifle disappointed as she led to sit with Bruce, who was driving, instead of with Roger in the back seat as she preferred. She told herself that she would sit with her husband when they started on again after their stop for luncheon, and was in good mood as they swung out into the street and headed uptown.

Other cars all about them were obviously bound for New Haven, and after they got out of town and were well on their way a friendly race began.

The long low blue roudster and the pretty car in the squirrel coat with the blonde young man driving tucked snugly in beside him, the latter car that carried a delightful looking couple and their two boys, evidently still in prep school; the sedan in which a jolly, white-haired man sat beaming at the rest of his family party—Bruce passed and then fell behind, as the fortunes of the road varied. The young man in the roadster, who had outdistanced them all on the long drive outside of Atlanta, had a puncture when nearing the short cut to Port Chester, and had to fall out of line, and the others jeered him cruelly.

Cynthia felt that all her troubles were sweeping out of her life as the cool air blew past her. Margaret was lamenting that Bruce hadn't looked the color of his hair when blowing, and she had lost her hat-pin and had to hold her hat on.

Cynthia wished she wouldn't grumble so. It seemed as if Margaret always managed to spoil any perfect moment by having something go wrong, and she knew that Bruce was setting his teeth at the thought that he'd never take his wife anywhere again.

"I'll give her a tip when we stop for luncheon," Cynthia reflected. "And maybe I can spare her one of my hats." She felt that she was grudgingly go bareheaded if Margaret would only stop fussing.

The Invisible Husband

BY MARGUERITE HURTER

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY.
Gertrude Gibbs, famous in the movies, but not well known in the real world, is the wife of Deborah Harris, a poor sewing girl in the shop of Madame Marie. Advised that a girl who marries is less valued by men, she wears a wedding ring and assumes an air of being married. Complications ensue when it is discovered in the studio that she has taken the name Deborah after—
Larry Demarest, leading man of the day, is a millionaire for every dollar, according to the press agents, and who is undoubtedly in love with Larry, although he is married to a woman named—
Pinkieberg, a gross director who makes advances to Deb. He desires Deb into believing that she is a movie star, and she is the only woman who is not in the studio. The facts are revealed. The tragic experience, together with the fact that she has been married, has caused her to have a bad cough—lung trouble is feared. So she goes to California. Meanwhile, Larry has become attached to the pair, because he has become a manager.

But pinkieberg, Larry and Deborah quarrel. Deb goes to Hollywood and secures a manager. She secures a contract insuring 25 per cent of Deborah's salary for herself.

Johnnie, a movie star, is a dress agent. Jerry and Mrs. Mary Lou Harris, Deborah's parents, are in the picture. Deborah has realized that she would quit the movie rather than compromise with Jerry.

INSTALLMENT NO. 67.
"On the High Seas."
The voyage across the Atlantic on the "Atlantic" was a most interesting experience, surpassing any dreams of luxury Deb had ever entertained—every conceivable convenience for the comfort of the passengers was provided. Nothing lacking from a marble swimming pool to a moving picture theater and concert hall.

Deb was thrilled beyond all expression when she learned that she could even play a game of tennis on board. "The meals were served in most delicious fashion. The chef seemed to be a real artist, and what no one ever expected to have in the middle of the ocean. . . . Deb was amazed when she learned that a fresh vegetable garden was planted right on deck in hot-house fashion. Flowers, too, bloomed daily for the decoration of the exquisite salons."

Deb thought that no fairy tale princess could ever have floated away on a more poetic honeymoon. . . . Nights on deck there was moonlight and the bounding waves to the accompaniment of the ship's music. Their lovers' stroll. . . . Mornings, gorgeous sunshine drenching everything in the golden glory of heaven.

Deb was a little disappointed when she found that the ship was in the middle of the sea. More than one day Deb and Larry had tea on deck where they could watch the sun and sea. Deb thought that the captain of the ocean there could only be equal to the joy in her heart.

The second day out at sea, she and Larry were entering the salon in the evening after they had been formally dressed for dinner, when the captain of the ship greeted them to extend an invitation to dine at his table.

This was an honor Deb did not expect so much as Larry, for she had never been aboard before and did not expect the etiquette of the high seas. After she was seated in the state at the right-hand side of the captain, however, Deb could not fail to appreciate that great deal of attention was aimed her way—not only from the ruddy, regal captain, but from other guests at his board, including an English lord, a French diplomat, and a famous Hungarian prima donna who was returning after her triumphant season at the Metropolitan opera.

The Englishman who expressed open interest. Lord Armstrong was his name—a typical son of gentility, fond of pleasure and pretty women. As he adjusted his monocle to eye Deborah with admiration, he drawled:

"I understand we are to have the honor of viewing you in the cinema tonight."

Deb was not especially quick at conversation and further quite visibly averted her face. The Englishman, however, glanced helplessly across the table to her husband. Larry was grinning in broad pleasure as he seized the opportunity.

"This was a nice touch of the entertainment committee to secure Miss Gibbs' new picture, wasn't it?" remarked.

The Englishman was more engrossed in the living contour of "Miss Gibbs" but he inquired tactfully.

"Your latest picture you say?"
"I don't know. That is, I didn't know they were going to do it," Deborah stammered in embarrassment. She began to realize how much easier it was to become famous before a camera, than to meet and know your audience face to face. . . . The glances of the English lord were disconcerting certainly! She pretended to be interested in the dinner, but—

"You know me?" she managed to smile later. "You've seen my other pictures?"

Lord Armstrong darted another glance of unmistakable admiration. "Indeed I have. The moment I saw you on the promenade, I beseeched the captain to present me. This Eastman over there—the little English fellow—a cinema syndicate man, 'know! Great old top! He said he had one of your films in a lot of stuff he was consigning to London. Luck, what? . . . Right off we got the entertainment committee to chuck 'Little Nellie' Nightingale or whatever foolish comedy they had listed, and now we are to have a glorious 'Premiere' for you on the Atlantic! Nice, what?"

"Yes, very," Deb swallowed. She had never been so bashful in her life! A real English lord anxious to see her act in a moving picture! The captain of this great big ship suggesting a toast to her, and across the table the burning, possessive eyes of Larry Demarest—her husband! On Larry's admiration, and the desire to stand up with all the dignity he would wish for her, made it possible for Deborah to respond.

Exquisitely slim and svelte in a crystal-embroidered robe that flashed like diamonds under the lights of the salon—she sat up with eyes burning and a gasp under her sweeping lashes—what a picture she made! . . . And at her bosom clinging ardent orbids that the captain had presented her to the conservatory. . . . Deb stood like a little princess at the head of the table—silent for a moment—just smiling.

The English lord was quite visibly upset, and the Hungarian prima donna not a little jealous. The night before it was she who had been begged to sing, and now she was the center of attention. She had been at the head of the table—silent for a moment—just smiling.

There was a quick response from the captain, a call for a speech from Larry, and then with the demitasse and the evening paper in the "long salon," the party broke up. . . . Lord Armstrong dined at Deborah's heels, and more than once she had to prevent him from clasping her arm too warmly as he burst into conversation.

"You'll be coming along to London, what? . . . Surely with your picture on your mind, you won't be there?"
"I didn't know my picture was going to London," Deb answered truthfully. "I'm going to Paris—on my honeymoon. You know, that gentleman over there—Larry Demarest—my husband! You heard him speak. You know that he was my husband, didn't you?" she insisted pointedly.

Lord Armstrong gave her an ardent glance—then shrugged his shoulders. "Stupid, isn't it?" he said. "Deb, Deborah hurried away from him and he was left staring after her, a real husband, after all, wasn't more barrier against flirtation than an invisible, make-believe husband had been. . . . The English lord was dreadfully sympathetic to Larry that night as they retired from the supper room, and he was again full of admiration for the success of her picture. "And the way they insist upon calling me Miss Gibbs when I'm Mrs. Demarest, really gets on my nerves!" she complained.

Larry laughed, but under it all a note of concern was suspicious. "You're not famous that I am, Deb! Miss Gibbs you are in pictures and Miss Gibbs you'll be for life! I'll be Miss Gibbs next! Speaking of invisible, what's invisible is what I'll be—nothing but—judging from tonight at dinner."

"You're jealous!" Deb cried affectionately. "I'm so glad. It shows you still love me."

Getting On at the Office

BY HELEN ORMSBEE

ALL ON ACCOUNT OF A PENCIL.
"Lend me a pencil, Dora," remarked Viola Murphy, seizing the one that was lying on Dora Belle's desk.

"You've got a nerve," Dora exclaimed. "I didn't say you could take it."

But Viola did not pause. "Aw you don't mind, do you?" she tossed back over her shoulder. "I'm in a hurry. Miss Nelson's waiting for me."

"It's the only pencil I've got," Dora tried to tell her. However, by the time Viola had passed beyond the confines of the outer office, there was a flash on the small telephone switchboard.

"Yes, this is Roberts and Nelson," she murmured into the transmitter. "Oh, you want Mr. Jenkins? He's out just now."

"Out?" repeated the irritated voice at the other end of the wire. "Well, I'll have to leave a message for him. This is Mr. Shaw."

"Oh, yes, I know your voice," "Oh, yes," said Mr. Shaw. "Here's the message. It's important, so be sure to put it down right." "Just a minute, till I get a pencil," Dora interrupted.

"Something like a groan came from the other end of the wire. Dora gave a rapid glance around the room. There was no pencil in sight. Hastily detached her head from her desk, she took up the telephone. "But Viola's desk was bare of pencils. After frantic search Dora managed to find one on another desk. Back at her switchboard, she spoke sweetly to Mr. Shaw. "Now I'll take your message."

"Humph!" he snapped. "Don't you have to send to the manufacturer's for a pencil? Well, tell Jenkins to sign, but the Osborne business is held up. When I see Jenkins I'll suggest that he get a new set of pencils before he goes out after this."

With that he hung up.

A moment later Viola Murphy came through the room on her way back from Miss Nelson.

"A nice fix you got me into, Viola," Dora burst out at her. "You took my pencil and I didn't have anything to get down Mr. Shaw's message. He got mad and he'll tell Jenkins, and Mr. Jenkins will light into me. It's all your fault."

"Oh, it is?" retorted Viola with indignation. "The idea of my having only one pencil, she went on breathlessly. "And—what about the mess you got me into just now?"

"What did I do?" queried Dora, surprised.

"The lead in your precious pencil was broken," Viola answered. "I looked up when I went to write with it. Miss Nelson gave me a calling down for bringing a thing like that with me!"

In the Air

WITH WGM

There are times around Station WGM when the good reports pile up so that a fellow can't get to them anywhere near on time. That's the situation for a week, but the reports on some of the concerts more than a week ago are so good it would be doing the artists a real injustice if I were to pass them up.

I'm speaking principally of the concert a week ago Sunday when Signor Volpi brought to Station WGM the Elks' memorial service intact, and the concert the night before that when John Hinton, "The Georgia Mocking Bird," went over with a crash.

All of last week's reports kept coming in on the concert given for Elks all over the country. It wasn't only an Elks program either, for it was the outstanding concert of the season. Signor Volpi, by the way, is one of the big stars on that program. Every time she sings a note, the radio fans are in a whole new world of reports on her singing.

Elks from all parts of America responded to the concert given especially for the Elks. The program was a real treat for the radio fans. It was a real treat for the radio fans. It was a real treat for the radio fans.

One of them is from Dr. N. M. McNeill, of Fort Bayard, N. M. He writes:

"I enjoyed your concert tonight. I was very clear through the vacuum tube receiver without amplification."

I didn't know you could put a tube set together here in spite of interference. Now this other report is from W. C. Clark, 1657 Garet street, Regina, Saskatchewan. Mr. Clark writes:

Improvement Indicated In Wall Street Trading

Friday Session, Mellon will put out $700,000,000 in cash or securities to the holders of the Victory notes; $200,000,000 to holders of maturing treasury certificates and $100,000,000 to holders of the $100,000,000 treasury notes and certificates are going to be offered to the public. Finally, on Friday the last payment of the $1,022,000,000 will be made. Mellon estimates that the fourth installment of the income tax will bring in $275,000,000.

As a result of the addition of the recently published large pig iron and steel ingot production figures, the heavy freight car loadings and other evidence of business activity, the industrialists point out that all of this has been accomplished from relatively small demand stocks of goods, partly to the credit of the individual industries, through reduction of inventory, but accumulating reserves which make them comparatively independent of the fluctuations of the market for raw material. In connection with the last statement, it is noteworthy that the net excess of imports in November of 1920 was $35,000,000. The balance turned this way over two years ago. This is altogether desirable as the present stock in the Federal Reserve is $1,000,000,000. It is in the form as broad a foundation for legitimate credit as could possibly be desired. More would only be encouraging and temptation to inflate.

We now have in this country practically half of the world's gold. In time, as the rest of the world gets straightened out, this gold we now hold is going to leave us. What we must look out for is that we will get something solid to take its place when it is gone. It does not appear, however, that the time has come for the tide to turn. The Berengaria, which arrived here today brought in forty-three cases of gold valued at $1,450,000 for Kuhn, Loeb and company, and twelve cases valued at 4,000,000 francs for the Irving National bank.

Atlanta Theatre—All week (matinee Wednesday and Saturday), Milton Nobles in "Lightnin'."

Forsyth Theatre—All week, Forsyth plays in "The Sign on the Door."

Keith Vaudeville.

At the Lyric.

A program of fun, spiced with popular music, is offered at the Lyric for the first half of the week. The audience was in a continual uproar from the beginning until the final curtain, when the bill opened Thursday night.

Clayton Drew & Co. received the heartiest applause in a ridiculously amusing comedy skit called "When Home Howls." Mr. Clayton as Caesar and Mrs. Clayton as Cleopatra in a series of dramatic poses and clever witticisms were "exceptionally good."

Another real comedian was Mr. O'Malley, who, assisted by Miss Dunham, delighted the audience with humorous songs and comical capers.

The entire cast of the musical comedy, "Listen Lester," is composed of genuine fun artists who received one round of applause after another. The Arnett Sisters, versatile musicians, sang and played the piano in a series of popular songs and musical numbers. An unusual contention and juggling act is offered by Mantell and West.

Loew's Vaudeville.

(At the Grand.)

Elaborate in scenic effects and gorgeous in its costumes, Bothwell Brown, Bathing Beauties, the big feature act at Loew's Grand theatre for the first half of the week, proved to be, as advance reports stated, one of the most pretentious dance spectacles that has been sent south in vaudeville in a month.

The company numbers ten with Bothwell Brown himself in several of his elaborate dance creations and six graceful girls in charming dance numbers. The opening scene is "A Night on the Nile," presented with a realistic Oriental atmosphere and introducing the entire company in Egyptian poses and dances. Then follows the bathing girls in sea shore styles. Many attractive varieties of bathing costumes are exhibited, vying with each other for popularity.

Mons Grant Gardner, a blackface comedian, is one of the hits of the show. His style is original and his funny sayings keep Monday night's audience in constant laughter. Mr. Gardner is also an accompanied by several well played selections. Other good acts are Grey and Byron in "A Girl's Week," a clever comedy skit, Rainbow and Mohawk, two real Indian boys, harmony songs and Indian dances and the Rialto brothers, sensational exponents of equilibrium.

The feature of the screen bill is Bert Lytell in "Sherlock Brown."

(At the Howard.)

Harold Lloyd has again proved that he is the most consistent funmaker on the screen by his latest, "Dr. Jack," which is seen all week at the Howard theatre. There are comedians who make exceedingly funny pictures, but Lloyd is the most consistent and dependable of the sons of laughter. "Grandma's Boy" seemed to be the perfect comedy—until "Dr. Jack."

Harold Lloyd is seen in the title role of "Dr. Jack," a doctor who cures ill by the "sunshine method." The fast and furious Lloydian comedy is interwoven with a charming love story and a lovely violin solo. The picture is the greatest love story on the screen. It is a great comedy and you really can't afford to miss it.

"The Howard Birthday Party" is the most consistent and dependable of the sons of laughter. "Grandma's Boy" seemed to be the perfect comedy—until "Dr. Jack."

"Skin Deep."

(At the Metropolitan.)

One of the brightest features of the Metropolitan theatre's program this week is the picture, "I Love a Little Cottage," built around Geoffrey O'Hara's latest ballad of that name. The picture is presented in a new unit of the Metropolitan orchestra called the "Art-Quintet," composed of Wallace Jackson and Meyer Kanner, Joseph del Greco, saxophone; Paul Urban, trumpet, and Adolph Verdi, piano. As a finale for the picture a soprano ballad, "I Love a Little Cottage," is presented.

"Skin Deep," featuring Milton Sills in the role of Bud Doyle, a returned soldier, whom the world was changed from a clever crook to a good citizen. Under the direction of the picture, it is exceedingly good entertainment, a story with a depth of plot and strength of theme that commands respect.

The picture is "The Sign on the Door," which opened to the usual large Monday night house last night, despite the first real touch of winter that Atlanta has experienced.

The play was one of the best that has been presented at the Forsyth for several weeks in that it enabled practically every member of the cast to do a real "hit."

Miss Belle Bennett, star, in the role of "Anne Hunnwell," stenographer, in the picture and as "Mrs. Late Regan," in the remainder of the play, displayed a mastery of the play, which held the audience breathless.

John Little, as "Mr. Regan," played up fully to the part, which was that of a young business man approaching the end of his career. He was a character with his characteristic prejudices.

Gus A. Forbes, as "Frank Devereaux," a typical "big game" hunter, as O. Henry might say. Mr. Forbes was most excellent in a part which required skillful interpretation.

Walter Marshall, a waiter in the picture, and district attorney in the final scene, received more applause than any other actor in the picture. In most of the parts he has appeared here, he has been a man trying to do the right thing in the face of opposition to the wishes of the audience.

Robert W. Smiley, as "Captain" and later "Police Inspector Burke," continued to show his quality as a character actor. He was a man trying to do the right thing in the face of opposition to the wishes of the audience.

Miss Kathryn Givney and Miss Alice Baker in small parts, drew flashes of approval from the audience. Eugene Baker was also cast in the picture, but contributed their share to the enjoyment of the performance.

"Lightnin'" Opens Its Week

With Another Big Success

That lovable and likeable old liar, "Lightnin'" Jones, is back in Atlanta for a week in "Lightnin'" at the Atlanta theatre and Atlanta is in for a week of cheerful good humor and chuckling laughter. If there ever was a play that appealed to all classes alike it's "Lightnin'," and if there's a character on the stage more winning than old "Lightnin'" Bill Jones it hasn't been around here. There ought to be a law passed to force everybody to see "Lightnin'" at least one time. It's a play that will destroy any grudge. It will touch the coldest heart. It will charm the simplest mind and will soothe the soul. It will make you love every person away from the theatre with a feeling that it's not such a bad world after all. It must have been the touch of a nature which makes the whole world play.

In a "Human" Play.

"Lightnin'" pleases because it is so blooming human. It is about the simplest little play imaginable. No complex plot. Nothing heavy or intensely dramatic about it. Only a bubbling spring of wholesomeness sending forth a trickling stream of honest philosophy and sturdy humor. It gets right to the heart and stays there. That's the secret of its success. Ask anybody who has seen it.

At the Atlanta theatre for the second time with Milton Nobles in the title role and the same excellent company. "Lightnin'" has been a big success. This company broke house records when here before and it deserves to repeat this success.

Nobles Fits Part.

As "Lightnin'" Jones, good old Milton Nobles is simply doing what other actors may have won undying fame in this part which was created by the late Frank Baron, but as far as Atlanta people have witnessed Mr. Nobles work and concerned, they could not be any better in this role.

Call it "hokum," call it art, or call it what you please, there's something about this old character as played by Mr. Nobles which can't be resisted. He works for two hours, and keeps the audience in a state of happy, hearty good humor all the time. The audience wants to cry now and then and can't because it laughs instead.

To describe how Mr. Nobles, or "Lightnin'" Bill, attracts and holds his audiences is folly. The only way to describe him is to see him.
